A California Picnic.
200 Miles Long, 15 Hours.
San Antonio's Mission.
The Indians' Long Sleep.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HEARST RANCH, SAN SIMEON, Cal., Aug. 20.

CALIFORNIA DOES all things in a big way, Olympiads, oil wells, mountains, gold rushes, giant trees, ocean, moving pictures, EVERYTHING

Perhaps you would be interested in a California picnic. First 20 miles of automobiling over new mountain roads built by W. R. Hearst across part of this ranch, leading eastward from the Pacific, over hills so steep that one car traveled backward to facilitate gasoline flow.

AT THE END of twenty miles, saddle horses are waiting, fifteen or twenty, with Western saddles, Mexican bridles, horses trained to slide down steep banks on their hocks. They need the training here.

Twenty miles on the horses over narrow trails made by cattle and deer, up and down steep mountains, and through valleys, with water still running in streams, despite the dry season.

Then the first half of the picnic at one of the assembled Hearst ranches, "El Pleyto." Everything in the picnic grown on the ranch, except coffee and sugar.

THEN TWENTY miles by automobile to another Hearst ranch, "Milpitas," part of his five hundred square miles of land in this part of California. On Milpitas Ranch stands the mission of San Antonio of Padua, third oldest in California, built before Jefferson composed his Declaration of Independence.

On Milpitas Ranch, W. R. Hearst has recently completed a new ranch house in the Spanish style, as long as three city blocks. The manager and workers of the neighboring ranch lands live there, in a fertile valley, beautiful mountains, covered with live oaks on both sides. No wonder the wise old fathers of the Catholic Church chose that fertile and beautiful spot for one of their first missions.

TIME HAS DONE its work. The long Mission House has fallen. Only a few massive brick columns remain. The building plan, fastened to the door of the chapel, still standing, shows where the refectory once stood, the dormitories and the large vats for wine. All are gone, only the mission chapel stands, two hundred feet long, forty feet wide. Tiles from the old roof are piled up inside, a temporary roof of wood replacing them.

The mission heads built those walls to stand. They are six feet thick, and stand on a foundation ten feet deep.

AT THE FAR end stands the altar, with its sacred figures, nearly life size just as they were one hundred years ago. Beautiful in their simplicity, designed to impress the Indians, for whom the mission was built, the figures all express deepest devotion and poignant suffering. Their garments are of real cloth.

CLOSE TO THE altar, just outside the thick chapel wall, is the cemetery, where lie many generations of Indians. Their ancient habits are respected, large mounds of earth cover the bodies, above each mound a wooden cross, to prove the conquest of the old Indian gods, driven from these mountains and valleys, forever.

Beside the mounds are flat stones, with bowls hollowed out, showing where Indian women ground their corn, perhaps wondering whether the dead, beneath the earth mounds, were as well pleased with the new heaven, brought across the sea, as they would have been with the happy hunting grounds of their fathers.

BESIDE THE SOLEMN mounds in a little enclosure of wrought iron work, stand two white marble head stones, above white graves. On one is written "Edward McDonough, Aged Seventy-four," on the other, "Mary McDonough, Aged Eighty-two." There they will lie, until the Resurrection, within five feet of their Indian brothers and sisters that lie below the earth mounds. Are they as near as that in the realm above? Is there any difference between Indians and whites there?

MARVELS WERE wrought by the missionaries in those old days. They brought water for irrigation in a wide ditch, fourteen miles long, dug by the Indians. They brought in cattle, horses, secured regular crops. The place is off the mission trail now, few ever see it, but mass is celebrated every month for the few that come.

Mr. Hearst having purchased all the lands about, excepting the mission site, has offered to restore the ancient mission buildings, replace the old roof of tiles on the chapel, and raise the

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., violating "strict doctor's orders not to travel," arrived from the East today and rushed to the bedside of his dying sister, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick.

The New York financier and his wife and son, John, were met by his nieces, Mrs. Max Oser, of Switzerland, and Mrs. Elisha D. Hubbard, of Connecticut, who have attended their mother during an illness expected to prove fatal.

He was asked if his father would come here to visit Mrs. McCormick, who had not seen him since her divorce in 1921. He answered:

"I think it is inadvisable for him to travel because of his age."

His father is 92.

Rockefeller, in a written statement, said:

"I have come to Chicago because of the critical illness of my sister. Since I came here to see her in the early summer I have been suffering from shingles, confined to my bed much of the time, and under my doctor's strict orders not to travel.

"Thus I have been unable to return earlier. Under the circumstances I feel sure I can rely on the sympathetic consideration of the gentlemen of the press to grant me the privacy they would desire were they in my place."

Physicians announced that Mrs. McCormick was "just drifting along" without apparent change in her condition.

The arrival of her brother buoyed her spirits for a while, just as the advent of her daughter, Mathilde, and other relatives had done in recent days.

MOLLISON TO QUIT LONG DISTANCE HOPS

ST. JOHN, N. B., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Capt. J. A. Mollison, who spent the night here after his trans-Atlantic solo flight, left this morning for Pennfield Ridge, 40 miles down the Bay of Fundy, where he landed yesterday.

There was a light rain, but he said he would fly the ship up to Montreal, where scores of fliers are gathered for the fourth annual Canadian Air Carnival. Before he goes there, however, he will attend a luncheon in his honor here this afternoon.

Tomorrow he is going to New York, where he will remain a few days before starting his flight back to Europe. That will be his last long-distance trip, he said this morning, but he will not abandon his career in aviation. He said:

"I'm a married man now, and I don't think I'll do any more long-distance flying."

He is also going to try to persuade his wife, the former Amy Johnson, to give up long flights. He said:

"The field has been pretty well covered. You can't be the first to fly anywhere nowadays."

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(INS.)—Mrs. James A. Mollison, nee Amy Johnson, today cabled her Atlantic-conquering husband to fly back to the British Isles immediately and carry out his original plans to be the first flier to complete a round-trip trans-Atlantic flight.

DENTIST WOUNDED BATTLING BANDIT

A victim of thugs who shot him in the thighs as he fought them near his home last night, Dr. D L. Singleton, of 3360 Perrysville avenue, a dental surgeon, member of the staff of the South Side Hospital, was confined to the hospital today.

As he was walking in Perrysville avenue, near Watsonia boulevard, a masked youth, revolver in hand, stepped from a coupe parked near the curb, and shouted:

"Stick 'em up!"

Dr. Singleton replied:

"Not on your life."

Then the surgeon lunged at the gunman and, as the two struggled, another masked and armed thug hurried from the car to his pal's aid. The second thug cried:

"Give it to him! Give it to him!"

Apparently fearful that his companion would be bested in the fight, the second gunman fired a shot from his automatic pistol. The bullet passed through Dr. Singleton's right thigh and lodged in his left.

The gunmen then ran for their car and, with a third man at the wheel, sped down Perrysville avenue. Neighbors, attracted by the shooting, went to Dr. Singleton's aid.

Leaping Pedestrians Dodging 'Bombs'

(OTHER PICTURES: PAGES 2 AND 3)

EXCITEMENT IN WILLIAM PENN WAY AT SIXTH AVENUE AS THE VETERANS BOMBARDED

Pedestrians—and crowds that gathered to watch!—dodging water bombs (water-filled paper pokes) and missiles of all kinds thrown from the high windows of the William Penn Hotel. The bombardment lasted almost two days before police reserves early today took a hand, arrested two dozen. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

BUCS MEET GIANTS IN DOUBLEHEADER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Pirates were out to regain second place in the National League race as they met the New York Giants in a doubleheader at Forbes Field this afternoon. The Bucs surrendered the runner-up position to the Brooklyn Dodgers as they met defeat at the hands of the Giants in the series opener yesterday.

Larry French, who hurled shutout ball against Brooklyn on the occasion of his last start, was to oppose Bill Walker in a duel of southpaws in the opening fray. Bill Harris was slated to oppose Herman Bell in the second game.

WOMAN DIES IN AUTO UPSET, OFFICER HURT

Mrs. Nellie Larimer, of 1817 Brownsville road, was fatally injured when an automobile in which she was riding with Patrolman Thomas Bennett, of the Carrick police station, overturned on the Library road, near the Red Tile Inn. Mrs. Larimer died a few hours after she had been admitted to Mercy Hospital.

Patrolman Bennett had been on duty at the South Side Hospital guarding a prisoner, but last night reported off duty because of illness. He also was taken to Mercy Hospital, where the extent of his injuries have not yet been determined.

Marie, Anton Flying To Visit Alfonso

VIENNA, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania left here for Carlsbad today in an airplane piloted by Archduke Anton of Austria, her son-in-law, for a visit with former King Alfonso and former Queen Victoria of Spain, who are spending a vacation at Castle Koenigswart.

ICE PLANT ROBBERS TIE, GAG WATCHMAN

An aged watchman was bound and gagged early today by two thugs who knocked the combination off the safe in the Consolidated Ice Company's office at Penn avenue and Lambert street, and escaped with a small amount of cash, according to police.

The watchman, J. E. Burkehouse, 64, of 117 Dahland street, said one of the two men bound him in the engine room in the rear of the building, after they had threatened him with a gun.

The other, Burkehouse said, knocked the combination from the safe in the first floor office with a sledge, but was unable to get the door opened. They took a box containing petty cash from a desk drawer.

'LADY GODIVA' FAILS ART BALL WATCHERS

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Aug. 20.—(INS.)—The flaming red crept out of the Atlantic as the "rosy fingered dawn" appeared—but nothing more. The big white horse was in his stall. And so the weary watchers crept sadly to their waiting beds.

The modern "Lady Godiva" failed to ride.

It was to have been a climax to the eighteenth annual ball held by the Provincetown artists last night, but although scores of persons watched and waited for the promised ride in the first grey streaks of the dawning day, all were disappointed.

But all agreed that the ball at the Town Hall was the best ever held. Every conceivable costume was there; came Adam, Salome, Egyptian dancers, Bavarian bar maids, without their bar; Gandhi, Fiji Islanders, and even a Hopi sun worshipper.

The costumes were colorful, scanty and daring. "Adam" wore a strip of gauze; a New York Society Girl" was attired in a strip of silk.

First prize for the most artistic costume went to Mrs. Floyd Cylmer as a Spanish dame, and second prize to Mrs. Dora Wechsler, of Toronto, as a Ukranian girl.

Salvage Ship Fears Pirate Attack

MILAN, Italy, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—20.—(INS.)—The flaming red sun hovering suspiciously near the salvage ship Artiglio II which is retrieving gold from the hold of the sunken steamer Egypt, near Brest, France, is believed by the Artiglio's crew to have piratical intentions, the correspondent of the newspaper Corriere Della Sera said today.

Commander Quaglia, of the Artiglio, has distributed revolvers to the 24 members of his crew, the correspondent said. A total of 250 pounds of gold is now aboard the salvage vessel, stored in an armored cabin below decks.

The suspected ship, he said, is of the type used in Haddock fishing off the grand banks of Newfoundland and has been keeping the Artiglio in view for several days.

Yesterday morning at dawn it passed very near and closely scrutinized the salvage ship and then returned to its watch.

Commander Quaglia said he was posting a guard day and night, but he did not request assistance.

VETS STEP TO MUSIC OF MILITARY BANDS UNDER CLEAR SKY

BULLETIN

President Hoover was censured for his action in routing the bonus army from Washington in resolutions adopted by the Legion this morning. A minority report was voted down, 864 to 124, amid cheers.

The convention also went on record as favoring full payment of the bonus and opposing cancellation or reduction of foreign debts.

The fourteenth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Department, American Legion, drew to a riotous climax today with these developments:

Seventy-five police, answering riot calls to Downtown hotels, arrested a score of men and women as an early morning celebration became boisterous.

Visitors flocked into the city from all parts of Western Pennsylvania for the six-hour parade of veterans as the final business session met to act on bonus, beer and unemployment.

A police court magistrate freed six disabled veterans arrested for selling Legion novelties on Downtown streets.

Pennsylvania's legionnaires were marching in martial array this afternoon as a brilliant finale of their fourteenth annual convention.

Eight abreast, thousands of World War veterans, members of the Ladies' Auxiliary and junior organizations, some in uniform, others in civilian garb, moved with quick precision through downtown streets to the North Side, through solid walls of cheering spectators.

To the strains of more than a score of drum and bugle corps, led by the crack Uniontown outfit, the host marched briskly under clear skies, the tang of autumn in the air, while from hundreds of sky-

VET HOTEL DISORDER BRINGS FINES FOR 4

More than a score of men, many of them legionnaires, and four women were lodged in Central Police Station early today when 75 policemen attempted to restore order and protect property in the Henry and William Penn hotels.

Repeated calls for protection throughout the night brought all available police from the Downtown, North Side, Oakland, South Side and East Liberty districts to check the pandemonium that raged in the rooms and corridors of the hotels.

Eleven men charged with drunkenness were discharged by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg after a reprimand, and four others accused of disorderly conduct were fined $5. Four women were held over for investigation.

William Cole, Masontown veteran, who tore the shirt of Lieut. Bert Jacks when the officer attempted to arrest him in William Penn way, was discharged after he had bought Jacks a new shirt.

Vincent A. Carroll, the new state commander, appeared in behalf of the Legionnaires and de-

'MONROE DOCTRINE' FOR ASIA, JAPS' AIM

TOKIO, Aug. 20.—(INS.)—An oriental "Monroe Doctrine," expounding the theory of Asia for the Asiatics, will be presented by Count Uchida, Japanese foreign minister, at the opening of the Diet on Monday, it was learned by International News Service today.

Count Uchida's statement is expected to be the opening gun in Japan's recognition of the new Manchurian state of Manchukuo in defiance of the League of Nations.

Coincident with his declaration, Count Uchida is expected to make a formal demand that the league cease "meddling" in Manchurian affairs. Recognition of Manchukuo by Japan is Japan's own responsibility, he is expected to point out.

Meanwhile, the continued indefinite cabinet policy on domestic affairs caused a steady decline in the value of the yen. Business leaders are hopeful that the Diet opening will see some constructive measures taken to stem the falling currency.

RECORD FLIERS AIM TO REMAIN UP WEEK

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Already aloft longer than any other women in the history of aviation, Mrs. Frances Marsalis and Mrs. Louise Thaden flew on today with a full week in the air as their next goal.

They established a new women's endurance record of 123 hours at 5 p. m., Eastern Standard time, yesterday. At 1 p. m. tomorrow it will be just a week since they left the ground.

After taking on about 80 gallons of gasoline from the refueling plane this morning, and catching their breakfast, lowered in a bucket, they dropped several notes saying they were near exhaustion but would stay aloft for the time being.

MAN DIES IN PLUNGE OVER 75-FOOT CLIFF

Toppling from the top of a 75-foot cliff along the Dravosburg-Duquesne road early today, William Vopalik, 54, homeless and jobless, was killed, according to Dravosburg police. The body of the man, laying 15 feet off the roadway, was found by William Sherwood, of Dravosburg. Suspecting foul play, county detectives were called to investigate. They said the death probably was accidental.

EX-SENATOR PEPPER SEEN AS UTILITY PROBE CHIEF

PINCHOT'S CRY OF WHITEWASH CONTINUES

Governor Insists on Schnader for P. S. C. Inquiry

HARRISBURG, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—George Wharton Pepper, Philadelphia, former United States Senator, today was considered as the likely investigator of the Public Service Commission and its relation to utilities.

The Republican organization decreed the investigation, designed to go back to the board's origin in 1914, as an attempt to meet the constant criticism of its foe, Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

It was voted by the organization-controlled Senate in its closing hours Thursday, and Pinchot yesterday set at rest worry as to lack of money by approving the $100,000 appropriated for it.

PINCHOT OPPOSED

Instead of stopping Pinchot's criticism, the proposed inquiry has evoked from the Governor's office an almost constant attack. The executive charges that the organization voted its own measure and killed his proposal in order to whitewash the utilities.

William S. Rial, Greensburg, met the gubernatorial lambasting with the query:

"I wonder if the Governor has some one he is trying to protect?"

Selection of counsel has been a point at issue between Pinchot and the organization since the investigation was assured.

Charles J. Margiotti, Punxsutawney, one of the foremost prosecutors in the state, was in line for the job until late yesterday.

It was announced then that United States Senator James J. Davis had engaged him as counsel to defend indictments against him charging his participation in a nation-wide lottery scheme.

OTHERS MENTIONED

Robert von Moschzisker, Philadelphia, former chief justice of the State Supreme Court, and George E. Alter, former attorney general and Pinchot's opponent in the gubernatorial primary in 1923 (Pinchot's first election) also have been put forth as possible counsel.

The organization admittedly wants to pick the counsel to keep control of the investigation. But regardless of its choice, the appointee will not satisfy Pinchot, who wants Attorney General William A. Schnader and says bluntly "without him the investigation will fail."

Rial went home for the week-end without indicating whether he or some other members will meet the Governor's demands that they reveal their relations, if any, with state utilities. James G. Benn, potent commissioner until his resignation last year, will arrive in New York tomorrow. He hurried back from Europe to meet Pinchot's allegations that he put $650,000 in the bank on $100,000 salary in his 10 years on the board.

Pinchot attacked Benn after he forced W. D. B. Ainey, Montrose, to quit the commission and its chairmanship after 17 years' service. Ainey retired as a Senate committee was about to inquire into Pinchot's charge that he accepted utility gratuities.

21 DIE AS HEAT BAKES LONDON

LONDON, Aug. 20. — (AP.) — A blistering sun arose over England again today following a scorching yesterday which smashed heat records and to which were attributed the deaths of 21 persons.

The death toll included three suicides, six drownings and a dozen other fatalities. Yesterday's high temperature was 99, nearly an all-time record.

Thousands sought relief at seaside resorts, and the Thames Embankment became a fashionable promenade last night instead of the haunt of the homeless, as it usually is. Ice cream supplies were exhausted early in the day. Even the beer at the "pubs" was put on ice, which is against all British beer-drinking tradition.

Hundreds slept outdoors, on roofs, on balconies and in gardens.

The throngs in London's swimming baths late last night were so dense that swimming was impossible.

North Side Store Held Up 7th Time

Being held up is losing its thrill for Albert Reed, manager of a chain store at 424 Suismon street, North Side. For the seventh time since he has been in charge of the store, he was held up shortly after opening for business today. He was forced to a rear room by a gunman and tied with rope. The stickup man escaped with $20 from the cash register. Reed unloosed himself and notified police.

Curtis Vetoes Hoover's Stand On Dry Issue

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Is it possible that Curtis and Hoover have been in the White House four years and haven't met yet?

After listening to Charley's acceptance speech we feel that somebody should introduce the two boys.

We distinctly heard Herbert say he was for resubmission of the Eighteenth rebus) He said it in Washington in front of 20,000 Republicans. By the process of elimination we get our two reliable witnesses, Daymon Runyon and Floyd Gibbons.

Charley takes the hurdles two jumps later and says he is against repeal. While he said it in Topeka we think we can have his speech extradited.

That makes the G. O. P. tug-of-war team yank on two different ropes and in opposite directions.

A house divided against itself must fall. So Charley picks himself out a nice, cool spot in the cellar.

Either Herbert Hoover must publicly chide Charley or we must believe he spilled the beans, let the mouser out of the burlap and struck while the irons were lukewarm.

The boys should get together. But it seems they would rather have their speeches confused than run the risk of getting their toothbrushes mixed up.

WALKER CALLS WITNESSES

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 20.—First witnesses in behalf of Mayor James J. Walker in his spectacular battle against removal from office will be summoend to the witness stand Monday afternoon when the ouster hearing is resumed before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Also on Monday—in the forenoon—Walker's counsel, the fiery John J. Curtin, will go into Supreme Court and argue in support of the Mayor's petition that, under the constitution, the Governor has no legal authority to remove him.

Mayor Walker apparently was undaunted by the reverse he sustained at the hands of Gov. Roosevelt, who, late yesterday, flatly denied motions to dismiss the 15 removal charges filed against Walker by Samuel Seabury, chairman of the Hofstadter legislative committee.

A grim smile was Walker's only reaction to the Governor's ruling, made after Curtin had argued for almost two days in behalf of the motion to dismiss the charges. There were indications that the Mayor, in the event he loses out in the fight with Seabury before Gov. Roosevelt, will carry his battle into the courts.

GOV. ROOSEVELT INVADES OHIO

Speech at Columbus Expected to Meet Hoover Claims

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

EN ROUTE TO COLUMBUS, O., With Governor Roosevelt, Aug. 20.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today will carry his campaign for the presidency into Ohio, long a Republican stronghold, but this year claimed by the Democrats.

The Democratic presidential nominee will make his first political speech in public since he accepted the nomination at Chicago, this afternoon at Columbus. He will speak at the baseball stadium in that city at 5 p. m. (Pittsburgh time).

TO MEET ISSUES

While the subject of his address was being jealously guarded, Roosevelt was expected to deal at length with the policies and program enunciated by his rival, President Hoover, in accepting renomination by the Republican party. His advisers have indicated that he will offer a "constructive program" for dealing with the economic situation.

In reality this will be Roosevelt's first campaign speech, although he insists he formally launched his campaign when he flew to Chicago and accepted nomination at the hands of the national convention.

He laid the blame for the business depression on the White House doorstep in a recent radio address, and his advisers expect he will amplify that charge in today's speech.

Gov. Roosevelt repeatedly has declared it is not his intention to conduct his campaign by merely criticizing the Republican administration at Washington, and that every criticism he makes will be followed by a constructive proposal.

WORKS ON SPEECH

Roosevelt has spent his odd moments during the week in between Mayor James J. Walker's removal hearings, in working on his Columbus speech. He did not put the final touches on it until shortly before he boarded the train at Albany at midnight.

Because of reports brought to him that the Buckeye State is ready to flop out of the Republican column this year, the Governor decided to make the Columbus speech a major campaign document, according to his advisers.

The Governor is being accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, two of their children, James Roosevelt, and Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee and his campaign manager, and Thomas O'Mahoney, Democratic national committeeman, of Wyoming.

MINE INVADERS RETURN HOME

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—The miners' expeditionary force of 10,000 men, successful in closing local collieries, had departed from Christian County today and scattered to their homes in adjacent counties—there to await a possible call from leaders for a trek into coal fields further south.

Occupation of the county, which took place Thursday, was terminated last night when leaders announced their purpose had been achieved. Local miners had joined the ranks of the strikers who objected to the $5 daily basic wage agreement recently effected by the Illinois union.

Officials of the Peabody Coal Company, largest operator in the country, obtained warrants charging 103 members of the invading forces with inciting to riot.

Armond D. Rosi, chief of the striking miners' policy committee, said pickets would march into Southern Illinois only if working miners there refused to join the strike.

William E. Best, of Pittsburgh, member of the Home Loan Bank Board, last night promised the building and loan men at their meeting in the Fulton Building that he would try to bring the bank here.

Best was applauded when he declared that the new bank system to provide credit for the small home owner will be in operation by November 1.

MARION DAVIES WINS ACCLAIM AS 'BLONDIE'

Capacity Crowd Rates Famous Star's New Picture Her Best

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Official and diplomatic social figures vied with the national capital's plain citizenry last night for places at the world premiere of Marion Davies' "Blondie of the Follies."

The capacity audience which went to Loew's Palace Theater as a personal tribute to Miss Davies remained to applaud her latest picture and to rate it her best.

Although local society editors had been under the impression Washington was all but decimated by vacations and a torrid summer, they had a pleasant shock as long lines of automobiles emptied socially prominent persons of the official, diplomatic and resident sets before the theater.

'FANS' AD TRIBUTE

Marion Davies' "fans" more than added their tribute. They gave the evidences of box-office success. At one time, the line extended from the theater at Thirteenth and F streets a full block up to the National Press Club Building at Fourteenth street.

At the eveneing performance Uncle Sam's stenographers were as insistent on gaining admission as were the ladies of the diplomatic corps, the wives of senators and representatives. The theater management declared the premiere had established a new high mark in audience appreciation of a cinema celebrity.

With the distinguished crowd attending the first showing of "Blondie of the Follies," the flash of photographers' bulbs and the good-natured elbowing of the crowds seeking admission, the premiere easily assumed pre-eminence among social events of Washington's summer season.

The picture itself was acclaimed by all. Miss Davies was applauded repeatedly, her distinguished audience being in entire accord on the outstanding merit of her performance.

AMERICAN OFFICIALS

Among the notables it was possible to glimpse in the crowded foyer were the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. William N. Doak, the acting Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke, Senator and Mrs. Henry F. Ashurst, Senator William H. King, and Nobile Giacomo de Martino, the ambassador of Italy.

Also noted was Associate Justice James C. McReynolds, of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Among other diplomats of prominence were the ambassador of Turkey, Ahmet Muhtar; the minister of Egypt, Sesostris Diasrouss Pasha; the minister of Greece, Charalambos Simopoulas and Mrs. Simopoulas; the minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Ferdinand Veverka; the minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro, with Senorita Cecilia de Alfaro; the counselor of the Chinese legation, Dr. Hawkling Yen, and Senor Don Eduardo L. Vivot, secretary, Argentine embassy.

NOTED DIPLOMATS

It was possible also to catch a passing glance at Senator Lynn Frazier, of South Dakota, and Mrs. Arthur Condon, Senor Dr. Don Luis Manual Debayle, charge d'affaires, legation of Nicaragua, and Senora Debayle; Raymond Bousquet, second secretary of the French embassy; Gustav Weidel, commercial counselor, legation of Sweden; Hubert de Wichfield, counselor, legation of Denmark, and Senor Don Gonzalo Guel, second secretary, Cuban embassy.

Yadollah Azodi, charge d'affaires, legation of Persia, and Mme. Azodi were present, as were Senor Don Adolfo J. de Urquiza, first secretary embassy of Argentina, and Senora de Urquiza; Senor Don Manuel Gonzales-Zeledon, charge d'affaires legation of Costa Rica; Simeon Radeff, minister of Bulgaria, and Mme. Radeff; Senor Don Juan B. Chevalier, secretary, legation of Panama, and Senora de Chevalier.

Distinguishable in the lobby throng also were Col. and Mrs. George Thorpe, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ash and other well-known Washingtonians.

Legion Concessionaire 'Competitors' Win Discharges

Six disabled veterans who sold Legion novelties in downtown streets in competition with the "official" American Legion concessionaire were discharged by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today. They had been charged with violating a city ordinance.

The accused were William Swanson, Frank Ecker and Joe Graylick, all of Philadelphia; Gustave Vogt, of Reading, and Steve Hurd and Mike Saviner. All, with the exception of Ecker, a cripple, had city licenses.

They were arrested yesterday afternoon on the complaint of I. Robbins, of I. Robbins & Son, the official concession holder. Bail was provided by the Rev. James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church.

The stand of the legion is that the Robbins firm pays it a "percentage which Edward Schietinger, chairman of the legion concession committee, says is "substantial," although he refuses to name the amount, and says the solicitation is vital to the convention.

Selling novelties and flags on the streets today, were women from other cities as well as Pittsburgh, many young men and girls.

Starting at Dinwiddie street and Fifth avenue at 1:30 p. m., the last division of the parade was scheduled to pass the reviewing stand in Ridge avenue six hours later.

In the reviewing stand, with other high legion officers, were Gen. Smedley Butler, former fighting Marine, who addressed the legion at its concluding sessions this morning, and Col. William R. Dunlap, grand marshal of the parade, and his aides. These included K. W. Curtis, chief of staff; H. S. Douglass, assistant chief of staff, and others.

CITY CROWDED

The parade, the largest seen in Pittsburgh in recent years, drew thousands of visitors from Western Pennsylvania and the tri-state territory. Traffic was rerouted along the line of parade, and downtown arteries were blocked.

Virtually the entire police force was called into action to handle the enormous outpouring of automobiles and pedestrians.

Before an estimated crowd of 10,000, Greensburg Post No. 318 won the state American Legion's Class A competitive drum and bugle contest at Forbes Field last night. Greensburg's score was 94.58. Uniontown Post No. 31 was second with 92.83 points.

The Class B competition was not completed. Three entrants, unable to perform last night, will be heard today. Duquesne, however, was leading, with California second and Latrobe third.

Each corps was given eight minutes to perform. They were judged on appearance, uniform, marching and playing ability. The playing began at 8 p. m. and continued until after midnight. Tarentum, a favorite of Class A, finished third.

GREENSBURG FIRST

The order in which they finished was Greensburg, Uniontown, Tarentum, Norwood, Philadelphia Post No. 3, Dubois, Jeannette, McKeesport, Ashland, Charleroi and the Pennsylvania Railroad Police. Dubois was later disqualified for using illegal bugles.

Beginning at 1:30 o'clock, the veterans will assume company manners today as they pass in review from the Fifth Avenue High School to the North Side. The parade, composed of 200 groups divided into 36 divisions, is expected to take six hours to pass in review. Col. W. R. Dunlap will be grand marshall.

The parade will pass down Fifth avenue to Smithfield street, along Smithfield to Sixth avenue, to Liberty avenue, to Sixth street, across the Sixth Street Bridge to Stockton avenue, west on Stockton past the reviewing stand in Ridge avenue, disbanding on alternate streets beginning with Galveston avenue.

MILITARY BALL

A military ball will bring the convention activities to a close at the William Penn Hotel tonight. Four ballrooms will be in use, with music by as many orchestras.

Hundreds of spectators last night lined the curbs in the North Side and downtown, and traffic in those sections was blocked for nearly two hours while the "40 and 8" marched by. Parade attire ranged from ladies' undergarments to dinner jackets.

The procession was featured by the Homewood box car, a replica of those used to transport soldiers in France. At intervals a small cannon on the roof of the float was discharged.

4 FINED IN VET DISORDER

Blame most of the disorder was caused by persons not connected with the convention.

Police blocked off the streets near the hotels to pedestrian traffic. A barrage of bottles, waste baskets and articles of furniture replaced the water showers of the day and night before.

Feathers from countless pillows drifted down from the windows. The pillow loss at the William Penn was estimated at $3,000. Damages to linens and other hotel equipment would run into large figures, it was said at the hotel.

Throngs milled into the city to watch the aerial attack of the veterans. Police attempted to protect the windows through which missiles were thrown, and many arrests followed.

Early in the morning police and hotel detectives kept a watch on the elevators and corridors to keep wanderers and visitors out. Inter-room visiting was also prohibited.

The William Penn Hotel lobby was flooded by water from a fire hose that had been connected on the sixth floor. The water ran down the stairways, flooding the corridors and lobby. Edward Roth, hotel detective, said he was kept busy with a wrench shutting off fire hose valves in the hotel.

A window in the Peoples Gas Building in Sixth avenue was shattered by something hurled from a hotel window. Automobile bodies and tops were reported damaged.

Stories of a fight on the fifteenth floor brought a rumor that a police official had been hung out the window by his heels. Roth said he stopped a fight on that floor, but denied that a policeman was involved.

Convention Highlights

A "big present" promised the Jeannette Drum and Bugle Corps for leading the Lackawanna Voiture, "40 and 8," in the national American Legion convention parade in Detroit last year, will be presented at noon today in the William Penn Hotel lobby. The "big gift" will be a 50-pound lump of coal from the Anthracite region.

Freakish and daring costume, comic floats and fun stunts provided laughs for spectators lining the downtown streets last night for the "40 and 8" parade.

Lee Suttell, of Buffalo, champion drum major of the country, will lead the Erie Drum and Bugle Corps in today's parade. Erie Legion Post No. 416 promises a treat with a girls' band.

Paul Griffith, of Uniontown, new state commander, is a veteran of Company D, 110th Infantry and Headquarters, 55th Infantry Brigade, 28th Division. He is the retiring western vice commander and is past commander of the Twenty-fourth District as well as his home post.

Ex-Sheriff John E. Sloan, of Clarion County, reached the convention late yesterday. Chairman of his county, he had to remain in Clarion to preside over a Democratic rally. Sloan, youngest man to be sheriff in Pennsylvania, came here with E. L. McDonald, who as a Republican was defeated for the Assembly by a handful of votes. Both are rooting for Roosevelt, Sloan predicting a 4 to 1 vote for the Democratic nominee in Clarion.

MOTHER SUES FOR CHILDREN

Twins sons of Mrs. Elva Mae Bales must be produced in Common Pleas Court August 23 by their father, William Bales, 201 Sweetbrier street, under a writ of habeus corpus secured by the mother from Judge Thomas M. Marshall.

Mrs. Bales has been employed at the City Hospital, Mayview, since October 1. Until then she lived with her husband and the boys, Herbert and William, but because of her husband's unemployment, it was agreed that he should go with the boys to live with relatives until she could find a boarding place for them near the hospital.

She says she found a suitable place last month, but her husband has refused to let her have the children.

fallen walls to their old places. Perhaps the church authorities will accept the offer, perhaps prefer to retain ancient memories in the crumbling walls.

IN MILPITAS RANCH House, on a table thirty feet long, fifteen feet wide, comes the second half of the picnic, while friendly neighbors that have dropped in, sing Mexican songs with accompaniment of guitars. Mrs. Rebecca Bame, who runs the Potrancas "Little Fillies" ranch on the edge of the government forest preserve, sings, in Spanish, songs that take your imagination far from the United States, from Wall street, and real estate investments.

MRS. HARRY M. TAYLOR, wife of the Milpitas Ranch manager, contributes the evening half of the picnic, "baby beef," hot biscuits and pans of the "pink beans," for which King City, nearby, is headquarters.

While you wait for the pink beans, Mrs. Taylor sings "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling, 'tis Like a Morn in Spring." You ask no question about her ancestry. That song, as she sings it, could come only from an Irish heart.

THE PICNIC is almost over. You drive by motor and by moonlight one hundred and thirty-five miles back to this ranch over mountains and along the Pacific shore, passing many little cities, with gas stations imitating Broadway lights, King City, Paso Robles, Atascadero, San Luis Obispo, Morrow—where the big rock rises from the Pacific, Cayucos, Cambria, and to bed at midnight.

The picnic, starting at nine a. m., lasts fifteen hours, and covers a little more than two hundred miles of roads and trails.

You should see this coast, and all of your country.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Aug. 20.
To the Editor of Sun-Telegraph:

The notification committee that has been around notifying everybody that something has happened to 'em, well, they finally caught up with my old "Injun" friend, Charley Curtis, yesterday. And they warned him that there was a possibility that he would have to listen to four more years of the same speeches that he had heard for the last four. Mr. Curtis kinder stalled a Ford right in the middle of the road on prohibition. That is going to bring up a kind of curious situation, as he is the only Presidential, or Vice Presidential candidate that is dry. So the drys have finally got somebody to go to at last. "Keep the country dry with Curtis in the Vice Presidency." Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

Democratic Candidate Heard At Ohio Rally; Argentine Music on WCAE

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's first address in his active campaign for the presidency of the United States is heard on KDKA today from 5 to 5:45. The broadcast originates in Columbus, O., and is carried throughout the country over a nation-wide hookup of 23 stations. While today's speech inaugurates the Democratic nominee's campaigning, he has spoken twice before over NBC networks since his nomination in Chicago on July 1—once on July 2, when he delivered his address of acceptance to the delegates, and again on July 31, when he outlined the Democratic platform.

Euphemia Yardley, lyric soprano, well known to Pittsburgh and New York concertgoers, is featured as guest artist with the KDKA Concert Ensemble, under the direction of Zoel Parenteau, in the Silhouettes program, which originates in the studios of KDKA and is sent over an NBC network today at 6 o'clock. Mrs. Yardley has chosen three songs of widely varied character for her solos—"Open Thy Blue Eyes," by Massenet; "Mighty Lak a Rose," by Nevin, and "The Night When Love Was Born," the currently popular hit.

Mrs. Yardley

More than 100,000 voices raised in community singing, a 2,000-voice Negro Hallelujah chorus and scores of bands and choral societies are heard over a Columbia chain, including WJAS, during a special broadcast from the Chicagoland Music Festival tonight from 10:45 to 11 o'clock. A "song battle" between Kiwanis and Rotary Club singers is an added attraction.

Program Pointers

Carabelli's Orchestra, the rage of Buenos Aires, alternates with Vincent Lopez's music as the "magic carpet" of the wandering cigaret hour hops from New York to the South American city and back on WCAE tonight at 10 . . . Listeners are taken to Vienna during Erno Rapee's concert on WCAE at 9 o'clock. Music of the historic city is featured by Rapee as he resumes his tour of the world, interrupted while he visited his old home in Budapest.

Mr. Lopez

C. W. Ward, president of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America, speaks on "Men Who Have Made Scientific Bait and Fly Casting a Hobby" on KDKA at 6:45.

Paul Whiteman's Rhythm Boys give a lesson in love on WCAE at 5:15, opening the instruction with "We Were Walking in the Moonlight," continuing with "Ooh, That Kiss" and "Kissable Baby," and closing with the moral, "Let That Be a Lesson."

Albert Coates, conducting the last of his Saturday evening New York Philharmonic Symphony Concerts for the current season, features Beethoven's "Symphony in A Major, Liszt's dynamic "Mephisto" Waltz No. 1 and the Overture to Humperdink's opera, "Hansel and Gretel," including WJAS at 8:30.

Fan Fare

Mary Steele, the new NBC contralto, thinks that singing before breakfast is bad luck . . . The Pickens sisters opened a vaudeville engagement yesterday in New York . . . Bernardine Flynn and Van Harvey, heard as Vic and Sade each morning except Sunday on KDKA, receive fan letters from a doctor in Dayton, O. —all written on prescription blanks . . . Frank Luther is more than a singer. He's an accomplished player and has mastered 12 musical instruments . . . Ramona, pianist and song bird with Paul Whiteman's orchestra, is one of radio's best-dressed women.

Miss Flynn

Claudine Macdonald, mistress of ceremonies on the Women's Radio Review, spent her vacation on a lonely island off Montauk Point and for two weeks did not hear a telephone or the roar of a motor car. She did, however, listen to the radio several hours each day. It's a habit, she says.

Slim, who plays the guitar and sings baritone with the Three Keys, has a horror of snow. Two years ago, when a coating of ice had formed after a heavy snow storm, Slim was walking on the crust and it broke, plunging him into a drift deeper than his height, 6 feet 4 inches.

Norman Brokenshire, Col. Stoopnagle and Andre Baruch all have their automobiles equipped with radio sets . . . Elizabeth Barthell tunes in for eight hours a day . . . William Merrigan Daly led the pit orchestras in five Gershwin shows. They were "Tip Toes," "Oh Kay," "Funny Face," "Show Girl" and "Strike Up the Band" . . . Ben Bernie, who returns to NBC networks next month, appeared on one of the original sponsored programs of NBC when that organization was first formed. Before that he broadcast from WEAF, now one of NBC's key stations.

'American Weekly' Review on Air

A preview of the unusual features of widely varied interest which are published in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly magazine, distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph, and in the March of Events section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, is heard on WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, relays the latest news flashes from the editorial room to WCAE listeners daily at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p m.

Crafton Juniors List Many Special Events

There's some real meat in the program fare which the Crafton Juniors have prepared for the coming season. Nor have the lighter items been neglected on the club menu. And the new year books when they appear will carry news of the senior club meetings as well as the junior's own announcements.

Among the special events will be the inter-community and the community flower shows in September, a bridge and fashion show for the benefit of the Crafton Milk Fund, a puppet show by the Wilkinsburg Juniors, the Christmas dance and bridge, the spring dance and a surprise night.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Should Girls Vamp While At Work?

Should business gals use S. A.?

Should they put on siren frills and use their feminine wiles on the big boss?

Or should they be sober and severe, keep their noses on the grindstone and their eyes looking straight ahead—and depend on good deeds to get 'em a boost?

All other things being equal, which'll get 'em ahead fastest?

Doris had been given to understand that business was serious, that hard work was what counted, and that it was not only the bunk, but actually something agin' an ambitious gal to be frankly a femme in the office.

And then she ran into the office vamp. Not that the vamp wasn't a good worker, a smart business woman and all that; but so was Doris. And the vamp got the plum! So Doris is sore.

"Is it fair?" she cries.

LIKE HER MOTHER

"Dear Sally:

"How do you think a girl in business should act? I mean toward the men she meets in business? And about her dress, too?

"My mother was one of the first women to make a success of her business life, and she always taught me that it was silly and undignified to dress and act for business as you would in your ordinary social life. She always wore severe, plain clothes, and met her business associates with no feminine wiles and frills. She worked hard and she was smart, and she has an important place in a big business still.

"Well, she gave me a good education, and I am not too dumb. I am willing to work hard, and I have big ambitions. When I got a job five years ago I went to work earnestly and conscientiously. I patterned myself on her largely. I really felt that I would get ahead faster that way. I had heard a good deal at home and other places about how men in business disliked women who played on their charms to get ahead, and I made up my mind I would never do that.

"Things went on well. I learned my work and advanced. I had my eye on a much bigger position that I was in line for—or at least I figured I was.

VAMP ADVANCES

"Well, there was another girl in the office. She was pretty, and she didn't hesitate to vamp the men she came in contact with—not vulgarly, you understand, but she always had her 'best foot foremost.' She kidded them. She flattered them now and then.

"In short, according to my notion, she traded on the fact that she was an attractive woman. She always wore pretty clothes that didn't seem to me really suitable or dignified.

"And now she has the job I worked so hard to climb up to. I don't think it's fair.

"So I'm wondering. Was I wrong? Do you think a woman should use her S. A. in business—or be strictly businesslike? I know how to be pretty and attractive outside of business. I have lots of friends and plenty of dates. But I do want to succeed—to really get somewhere in my work. I thought I was working it the right way, but now I am not so sure.

"Which do you think is the best way—to frankly be a woman in business, or to be like my mother? "DORIS"

All right, you business gals, let's have your idea on the subject!

Should or shouldn't working females look and act as such?

Or should they do their best to imitate a steel enameled filing cabinet?

And is there, or isn't there, any harm in a little feminine wile, now and then, if the wiler also delivers the goods?

As for bosses, may or mayn't they be kidded? And if not, why not? Let's hear from the girls—and the boss as well.

Darned Linens

One woman mends all her table linen on her sewing machine. She first puts the worn place in her embroidery hoops. Then she loosens the tension of the machine and stitches back and forth until the place is neatly darned. After laundering, the mended portion is very hard to find.

NAVY BLUE ENJOYS GREATEST VOGUE IN FASHION HISTORY

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 20. — Navy blue is this year's Paris color. Probably never before in all its fashion history has so much navy blue been worn in the French capital. It threatens to replace black for street clothes; it fashions the majority of street clothes; it is accepted as one of the smartest of evening colors.

* * *

ALTHOUGH not listed as a striking leader of autumn colors, French women are ordering many of their fall wardrobes in navy blue. It appears in striking new combinations—with olive green, with bordeaux red, with bright pink, with warm browns, as well as in its familiar alliance with white.

* * *

IN THE sketches, Chanel and Lucien Lelong contribute navy blue costumes. The Chanel suit is in chantonel—a shantung with a bit of wool in its weave. The Lelong suit is flannel—the jacket in navy blue, the dress in white. A jacket of this type is especially useful at this time of year, for it can be worn over navy silk frocks, giving the effect of a suit.

* * *

* * *

Arthritis Pains Disappear as if by Magic When Infection Is Removed

Arthritis, one of the oldest diseases known to mankind, has been regarded as incurable. It is still believed by many to be incurable, but when the disease is properly treated complete cure and relief can be obtained in most cases.

Dr. Copeland

Persistent inflammation involving the joints of the body is usually spoken of as arthritis. There are various forms, and in each certain changes take place in the affected joint. These may involve the lining of the joint, the bones of the joint or the structure around the joint.

The disease is usually met between the ages of 20 and 40. It may come on suddenly, but in most cases is slow in its progress.

The most common cause of arthritis is some sort of infection of the joints. This may come from what is called a "focal infection," which may exist anywhere in the body.

By focal infection is meant a localized infection, and this may be in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder, intestine or some other point quite distant from the afflicted and painful joint.

Most cases of arthritis are successfully treated when the focal infection is located and removed; and by means of the X-ray it is now possible in most instances to determine accurately the presence or absence of focal infection.

Infected teeth are a frequent cause of arthritis. The teeth may not ache, yet when X-rayed they show definite signs of decay and infection. Or the X-ray may reveal a diseased gall-bladder infected sinuses, appendicitis or intestinal infection, and when the localized infection is removed the relief from inflamed and diseased joints is almost miraculous.

Certain forms of arthritis persist in spite of the removal of focal infections, and in these cases it is found that correction of body posture, overcoming faulty elimination and getting rid of unhygienic living conditions bring about the desired relief.

Improper food, failure to eat fresh fruits and vegetables or lack of exercise, sunshine and fresh air must be considered as additional causes of arthritis. After the focus of infection has been removed, blood-building foods should be included in the diet. For this purpose liver is recommended, daily or at least every other day. The diet should be simple, and should contain vitamins, mineral salts and liberal amounts of protein.

Only within recent years has arthritis been successfully treated. Individuals now suffering from arthritis may obtain relief by subjecting themselves to a complete and thorough examination. All sources of infection and disorders of the intestinal tract and digestive systems must be corrected before cure can be expected.

Do not become discouraged if you do not obtain immediate relief, for prolonged and careful treatment is necessary in some cases.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Party for a Bride-to-Be

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Are there any other plans one can make for a bride-to-be besides a shower and a pre-nuptial party? I have invitations to both of these, to be held for a bride-to-be, and as I know so very little about these things and am so anxious to give something for her, I wonder if you have other suggestions for me? B.

If you wish to invite only girls to your party a luncheon in honor of the bride-to-be is a charming and distinguished kind of party to give. The table can be set with a "bridal" appearance . . . your central decorations of all-white or white-and-pink flowers, and the corsages at each place carrying out the same gay effect. Place-cards, too, can be very interesting for this kind of party . . . but not over-done.

If you wish to invite both girls and men, why not plan to have a Sunday evening buffet party? Everyone likes these, and perhaps no one will plan this kind of party. Here, again, your central decorations of your buffet table may be of white or white-and-pink flowers.

Bridge Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine was married last June and went to Florida to live. She is now visiting the old home town, and I am planning an evening bridge party in her honor, just some of her old-time friends, to get together and talk over old times, and so forth.

I will have the usual prizes, that is, first, second and consolation and I am wondering if it is proper, or necessary, to give the guest of honor a prize or gift.

As the party is not in the nature of a shower, I have been wondering just what is the proper thing to do, and I would appreciate your advice. D.

For the hostess to provide a "prize" for the guest of honor is entirely a matter of her choice. In some communities this is the custom, and in other communities it is not. It isn't necessary at all, but it is proper if you wish to do it.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Unwise Double

Some players at the Contract table have a tendency to make Penalty Doubles of adverse contracts, because for one reason or another they do not like the adverse bidding. It, of course, goes without saying that Penalty Doubles, designed to defeat a contract freely entered into by the opposition, should not be made, except upon values held in the Doubler's hand or shown by the bidding to be held by the partner. Resentment over the methods used by your adversaries to reach a contract is never a sound basis for doubling them, as the holder of the West hand shown below discovered to his sorrow.

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A 10 7 ♡ A 10 9 8 ◇ A Q 8 ♣ K 9 6
♠ Q 9 8 6 5 3 ♡ K Q J 6 2 ◇ 5 ♣ 4	North West East South	♠ 4 2 ♡ 4 3 ◇ J 9 7 6 4 3 ♣ A 8 3
	♠ K J ♡ 7 5 ◇ K 10 2 ♣ Q J 10 7 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1NT(1)	Pass
2♣(2)	2♠(3)	3NT(4)	Pass
Pass	Double(5)	Redouble(6)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) A correct Opening no-trump bid, even though vulnerable. The hand contains four honor-tricks and the bid of one notrump is better than to so greatly shade the honor strength by bidding one heart.

(2) With 1½ honor-tricks and a six-card trick, South makes his correct response.

(3) An unwise bid, unless West plans to carry it through by later bidding the heart suit, a dangerous procedure in view of the fact that East and West are vulnerable.

(4) Overoptimistic, but North, no doubt, knows his West.

(5) An extremely bad Double. It virtually compels East to open a spade, and West's holding in that suit and North's bidding do not suggest any probability of that opening producing a favorable result.

(6) Optimistic.

In the play, East, quite properly, opened the spade 4, and North and South lost only a single trick. East's Ace of clubs being the only winning card for the partnership. The resultant score more than equaling a successful Slam contract, which could not be made against a heart opening, came directly as a result of West's bad bidding and inexcusable Penalty Double.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What value can be assigned to a singleton in a side suit in the Responding Hand when holding Q x or x x x in partner's trump suit (partner having rebid the suit) or holding a singleton trump (partner having bid the suit three times)?

Answer. No value can be given to a singleton in the Responding Hand unless at least three cards of partner's trump suit are held, as strong opponents, seeing the singleton and a short trump holding, would lead trumps at the first opportunity.

STEEL AWAITS SEPTEMBER UPTURN

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel ingot production this week has been at about 14 per cent, the same as in two weeks preceding, and comparing with a trifle over 15 per cent in the last three weeks of July. The decrease is fully accounted for by virtual cessation of shipments to the automobile industry and by further seasonal decline in tin plate requirements.

Steel producers are not disturbed or even disappointed by the failure of demand to increase up to the present date. Late August was the earliest time set by anyone and at that no more than a little start was expected. The average time named in predictions of substantial improvement was the second half of September.

Meanwhile general business sentiment continues to improve and advances in the stock and bond markets are taken more seriously. The two are closely associated with back and forth influences of cause and effect. They are laying foundation for improvement in steel at the usual seasonal time.

STOCKS MOVING OUT

Despite the failure of mill operations thus far to show any increase, there are signs of improvement in ultimate steel demand. Some steel products have begun to move more freely out of warehouse in many sections. Recently an increase in jobber buying of sheets was observed, and since then an increase in jobber buying of nails and other wire products.

Finished steel production since June 1 has been at a rate of about 136 pounds per capita per annum, less than two-fifths the per capita rate in 1901. Production since then has totaled about three-quarters of a billion gross tons and a large part of that tonnage now exists in facilities of various sorts which require repair and upkeep, work that has been neglected of late, arrearages accumulating.

Increased steel demand is expected to come largely from the sources indicated, from smaller manufacturers and for plant repair and upkeep, also for replenishing stocks. Less increase is expected from the few large consuming lines.

While automobile production has been reduced sharply to a very low level, sales have increased since the first of the month and prospects for the remainder of the year are not as poor as they seemed to be 30 days ago.

BRIDGE WORK COMING

Not much business is expected from the railroads in the next few months.

The Golden Gate bridge, involving 107,000 tons of steel, has become a live project again, the Southern Pacific having withdrawn its objections while an R. F. C. loan is expected. Plans for a bridge from San Francisco to Oakland have been announced, involving 139,516 tons. Fabricated structural steel lettings announced in each of the last two weeks totaled 12,000 to 13,000 tons, making two rather light weeks. Shipments of the fabricating shops have been increasing since the middle of May, with a total increase of 44 per cent to the week of July 30.

Finished steel prices have been holding well. With no additional consumer buying of consequence the Pittsburgh district scrap market lost a little of the strong tone it had a week ago.

CHESAPEAKE'S COAL HAUL LARGER

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—Chesapeake and Ohio Railway has shown a rather sharp pick up in coal loadings so far during August and especially so in the past few days. Such a pickup is seasonal and has been anticipated by the management. The two weeks ended August 14, with 28,773 coal cars loaded, was the best two weeks period for the road since the fortnight ended March 26, last, when 32,259 were loaded as a result of a late cold snap that turned the coal business sharply upward.

SHOWING IMPROVES

In the first three days of the present week business has continued to gain, with loadings, although under the same days a year ago, nevertheless not showing as great a drop as for the year. For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday coal loadings amounted to 8,154 cars, compared with 10,264 for the comparable days a year ago, or a drop of 17 per cent, while for the year to August 14 loadings were 439,003, against 571,750 for the similar period of 1931, or a drop of 23.2 per cent.

Coal business represents around 60 per cent of the total business of the Chesapeake and Ohio.

MOVEMENT WEST

Traffic movement has been predominantly westward, representing largely shipments to the lower Lake ports. The coal movement has been later this year than usual, consequently it is believed improvement will be felt from now on. Consumers have been reluctant to tie up funds in early commitments because of credit conditions and because they have felt the price was more liable to decline than to rise, as is usually the case toward the end of the season. As the season draws to a close these buyers will be forced into the market by necessity.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Bank clearings this week at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, were $4,117,911,000, a reduction of 37.7 per cent from last year. At New York City, clearings were $2,785,972,000, a loss of 37.7 per cent, while the total for the cities outside of New York of $1,331,939,000 was 37.9 per cent smaller.

Losses at most of the larger cities continue heavy, but they are somewhat less than in the preceding months of this year, and the slight betterment at the South has further developed. A feature worthy of note is the fact that daily clearings for the three weeks of August, which are generally close to the low point of the year, are now again increased, and are higher than the amount shown for each month back to April.

Clearings at leading cities, as compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., showing decreases as compared with same period a year ago, follow: (Total in thousands):

STOCKS STIFFEN AFTER EARLY DECLINE

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(AP.) — The stock market sagged quietly in the early trading today, in continuance of the moderate selloff yesterday, but the list stiffened toward the end of the first half hour.

Stocks losing 1 to nearly 2 points included Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, American Tobacco "B," Allied Chemical, du Pont, Westinghouse Electric, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, Eastman and Case. These losses were reduced by fractions, however, after the first few minutes.

The conclusion of the Ottawa conference was one of the chief developments of interest to Wall street, and while it appeared that American foreign trade might suffer somewhat, the results were probably not as adverse as expected some weeks ago. Steel and textiles appeared to be the items in our export trade which would feel the adverse effects most. Our export trade, however, as reported for the July, had already fallen to the lowest level since July of 1908.

Week-end business and trade surveys showed little change in basic conditions. The most encouraging aspect of recent business developments, probably, has been the stability of the general level, as most of the standard index figures for general business activity have shown little important change since the first of July.

Foreign exchanges were mixed at the opening. The French franc, recently firm, relapsed 5-16 of a point to 3.92 cents for cables transfers. Sterling cables opened ⅛ of a cent high at $3.47⅛.

CAR LOADINGS GAIN 16,398

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Loading of revenue freight cars during the week ended August 13 totaled 512,431 cars, an increase of 16,398 cars over the previous week and 231,195 cars below the corresponding week in 1931, according to the American Railway Association.

Cotton Spinning Lower Last Month

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The Department of Commerce announces that according to preliminary census figures 31,708,510 cotton spindles were in place in the United States on July 31, last, of which 19,758,252 were operated at some time during the month, compared with 20,561,914 for June and 25,825,718 for July, 1931.

Kroger Grocery's 4-Week Sales Off

CINCINNATI, Aug. 20.—Kroger Grocery and Baking Company sales for four weeks and 32 weeks ended August 13 compare with similar 1931 periods as follows:

	1932	1931
4 weeks	$ 15,226,560	$ 17,891,686
32 weeks	134,426,703	156,404,103

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Theater Mouse

At night, when all the feet have fled,
He pokes his small, dramatic head
Out of the wings and struts as bold
As though a Craig or Meyerhold
Were sitting front to watch his bit,
Noting its pantomime and wit.

The silent house of huddled chairs
In blank amazement sits and stares;
The midnight traffic of the street
Is music for his nimble feet.
No juvenile or leading man
Takes half the freedom this mouse can:

His only critic is a cat
Crouching where firmer critics sat.

—Charles A. Wagner.

Complaint

A two-pants suit gives us the blues in times like these, wails David Murray; it means we have twice as many pockets with no money in them.

Yowsah!

Lincoln Levinson revises it to read:

"All that I am and all that I hope to be, I owe."

True Story!

From C. D. Russell, creator of "Pete," comes a verified tale of principle and irony that has few equals in this anti-dry era. Three years ago one of Father Knickerbocker's fine old ladies found herself at the mellow age of 90 and thought it about time that she draw up her last will and testament. Her adherence to the Golden Rule had proved profitable in many material ways, and when she called in her attorneys she estimated her wealth at $450,000 in gilt edge securities and outright ownership of the brown-stone front dwelling at Fifth Ave. and 12th St.

"I want my entire fortune to go to my niece," she instructed them. "But there is one proviso. She must promise never in her life to take a drink or offer one to a friend."

And, according to the will, should the niece (who happens to be one of New York's best known syndicate writers) refuse to agree to this, the estate was to be turned over to a temperance society in which the old lady had been an active member for years.

The temptation was overwhelming. But the niece, who had always opposed prohibition in her writings, considered the offer for several weeks and finally came to the conclusion that the restriction was too great. She came to her aunt and told her so.

"I guess I'm crazy," she said, "but I know that sooner or later I'll be sorry for ever making such a promise."

And thus she passed up a cool half-million.

Within a year the aunt passed away and her entire fortune, including the house, went to the temperance society.

And now the proverbial irony! Two months afterwards the dry organization finding itself in dire need of funds, auctioned off the East Twelfth street building. And 10 days later the house was opened as a first-rate speakeasy. It has prospered from a wide following among the wealthier Greenwich Villagers and Vth avenue residents. And exactly at the spot where once stood the old lady's bed and where she signed her last testament, now stands the cash register.

But, perhaps, the most weird of all, is the fact that the newspaper woman, who might have had the entire property but for one promise, now comes there nightly to drink a silent toast to her dead aunt.

Surrender!

It's silly to sin and I know it,
It's silly to drink such a lot;
It's silly to play so you show it,
It's silly to spend all you've got;

It's silly to monkey with passion,
It's silly, I say it, to flirt;
Whatever the mode or the fashion,
My boy, you will only get hurt:

Then give us a girl and a flagon,
Then give us a drink and a jade . .
Why not get a glorious jag on
If that is the way we are made!

Wilfred J. Funk.

Oops!

According to Paul Forrest, an Atlanta, Ga., court holds that policemen are excellent judges of whisky and that they should be consulted as to whether it is genuine or not. If that's the case I should be very happy to have them step around tonight and tell me whether I was overcharged for that new shipment of Johnny Walker.

House-Guests

Two well-dressed youngsters, hitch-hiking their way from Washington to New York, stopped Samuel Taylor Moore, the Sat. Eve. Post author, and asked for a lift.

"We're just coming back from the B. E. F. encampment," they told him, "and we're too tired to walk any further."

"You kids are pretty young to be veterans, aren't you?" Moore inquired. "Neither of you is over 20 and the war was over 14 years ago."

"Oh, no!" piped one of the boys, "we aren't veterans, we were at the B. E. F. camp as guests of a veteran from Vermont."

BITS OF LIFE
All in a Day
By Mark Hellinger

Clipping Bureau

SOME TWO years ago, when I was playing in vaudeville, I became very actorish and subscribed to a clipping bureau. If I had known at that time what the various critics were going to say about me, I certainly wouldn't have gone to any such trouble.

Be that as it may, I did get in touch with a clipping service. The gentleman on the other end was most cordial to me and assured me that his outfit handled the accounts for anyone who had ever been in the public eye at any time. I'm not quite certain of the amount, but I think I was asked to pay $12.50 for some 250 clippings.

I immediately had visions of 250 rave notices pasted into a scrap book with a pretty cover.

I had a mental picture of myself in my declining years—which may or may not be the present. I saw myself as I sat in a huge chair with my golden-haired grandchildren climbing upon my knees and very possibly blowing putty at me from different corners of the room.

"Grandpa," one of them would say, "did you ever amount to anything when you were young? You're such a terrible nuisance now that we were just wondering."

Whereupon my great moment would arrive. I would arise from my comfortable chair and crawl up into the attic. If we had no attic, I'd go down into the cellar. They weren't going to fool me.

I would drag out my precious scrap book. I would blow the dust from the cover and gaze fondly at the wrinkled clippings. And I would return again to my beloved grandchildren.

"There, my little ones," I would cackle. "This is the result of the fortunate day that I subscribed to a clipping bureau in the long ago. Look there and read what it says about your grandfather.

"Look at that story. 'Thousands Wait All Night in Pouring Rain to Greet Hellinger at Stage Door.' And that one. 'President Hoover Tries to See Hellinger Act But Cannot Get into Theater.' And that one. 'Hellinger Offered $100,000 a Week to Continue in Vaudeville.' That was I, you dear children. That was your grandfather in his younger days."

That was to be my greatest moment because, after they learned that I had once been an actor, the brats would probably never speak to me again, which would make everything perfect . . . .

All in all, then, the clipping bureau looked like a fine investment for me. I sent them my check for the required amount. And as soon as they were certain that it wouldn't bounce back, they began to send me my clippings.

With the arrival of the first batch, I began to sense that all was not as it might have been. For there was nothing there aside from my own columns that had been clipped from the various papers around the country that print this junk. True, they came from large cities and small, and from Maine to California. But they were all my own columns.

So I promptly called my clipping bureau upon the phone.

"Look here, old boy," I said cordially, "do me a great favor, will you? I ordered 250 clippings from you but I don't want my own columns. I'm looking for some comments on my vaudeville tour. Get those instead, will you?"

The kindly voice assured me that the situation would be remedied in no time. I would no longer receive my own columns. And the gentleman kept his word. A received a huge batch of clippings the following day, all from the columns of O. O. McIntyre. Mr. McIntyre, it seems, had used my name in a story. And some 80-odd clippings came my way all from different papers, but all the same story!

By this time I was fairly well convinced that my grandchildren would have to go without their scrap book. More, I had already seen a few of my vaudeville reviews—and I was definitely certain that I would be wiser to destroy them than to keep them, so when the next load of clippings came—half from Mr. McIntyre's column and half of my own again—I tossed them away and forgot the entire business.

But lo and behold. If I wanted to forget the entire business the clipping bureau had no such intention. After two or three months went by I was sent a bill for $5.04 by the clipping agency. It seems that they were demanding payment for sending me additional clippings that I hadn't ordered!

At first the situation was highly amusing. Such colossal nerve was deserving of at least a smile. But as the months went by and the bills continued to arrive the smile faded. It wasn't the money, because if it had been but four cents I would have objected just as strenuously. I hate to fall for rackets. Being in one myself should make me almost immune.

The end came a few weeks ago when the gyp clipping bureau had the gall to employ a collection agency to get the $5.04 from me. One dunning letter from the collection agency was more than even I could stand. I promptly notified the clipping bureau and the collection agency that if I was bothered once more by either party I would place the entire racket before the district attorney.

That epistle brought immediate results from the collection agency—an agency, incidentally, that seems to be a high-class concern. The president wrote to me and readily admitted that the thing did seem to resemble a racket of some sort and that he was glad I called his attention to it. For, in addition to such a small-timer as myself, the clipping bureau wanted various sums from Bainbridge Colby, Hiram Brown, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., and Gen. John J. Pershing!

The fact that they neglected John D. Rockefeller was probably just an oversight . . .

With his communication, the president of the collection agency sent me a letter that had been received by his firm that morning. It came from a man named H. E. Gibson, who is an inmate of the Atmore State Prison Farm, Atmore, Ala. It is a swell letter and I trust no one will object when I reprint it in full herewith:

"Gentlemen:" it reads. "In response to your request, I wish to tell you that it is impossible for me to send you a check.

"My present financial condition is due to the effect of Federal laws, State laws, County laws, Corporation laws, By-laws, Brother-in-laws, Mother-in-laws and Outlaws that have been foisted upon an unsuspecting public. Through these various laws I have been held down, held up, walked on, sat on, flattened and squeezed until I do not know what I am or why I am. On top of all this, I am serving a three-year prison sentence.

"I am suspected, expected, examined, re-examined, inspected, disrespected, informed, required, commanded and compelled until all I know is that I am supposed to provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known need, hope or desire of the human race. I am cussed and discussed, talked to, talked about, lied to, lied about, held up, held down and robbed until I am ruined. So the only reason I am clinging to life is to see what is coming next.". . .

"Rackety Rax," which Alfred Werker will direct, is the screen version of Joel Sayre's satire on college football.

Ex-Prince in Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The first motion picture interview ever made of the former Crown-Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, of Germany, is contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. The pictures were made on the estate of Count Almeder, at Mondsee, Austria, where the ex-Crown Prince was visiting. Friedrich Wilhelm talks of the future of Germany and of the war, which ended his family's rule. He declared that if it had not been for the entry of the United States into the World War Germany surely would have conquered the Allies.

If Germany could go so far alone against the nations of Europe, he adds, there need be no doubts about her future. He had made all preparations to attend the Olympics in Los Angeles, but says that at the last moment it was impossible for him to leave. He expresses the hope that he will be able to come to the United States soon.

TROTTING RACE FILMED

A new queen of the trotting world was created when The Marchioness, owned by Mrs. Ralph R. Keeler, of Auburn, N. Y., captured the Hambletonian Stakes at Goshen, bringing to The Marchioness the crown and to Mrs. Keeler a purse of $48,300. A crowd of 20,000 saw the thrilling race, and there is a graphic description of it by The Globe Trotter.

Impressive pictures show the dedication of the great ossuary at Fort Douamont, France, where rest the remains of 400,000 unidentified heroes of Verdun. The dedication is presided over by President Lebrun, the Minister of War, and Marshal Petain, hero of Verdun, where he made his historic declaration "They Shall Not Pass!"

It's winter time "down under," and the coast of Australia is being swept by cyclonic storms. Big merchant liners are shown being buffeted by gigantic waves as they stagger into port. On the shore line at Sydney great seas are seen dashing against rocky cliffs.

AQUAPLANES STUNT

An aquaplane circus, chuck full of thrilling stunts, is held on Lake Mohawk, N. J. Daredevils perform amazing feats as the flimsy craft fly crazily over the surface of the lake.

First pictures of New York's new Eighth avenue subway that will be opened after Labor Day are presented. This new link, which cost $91,000,000, is 12 miles long and extends from Chambers street to Two Hundred and Seventh street on Washington Heights. It is part of the new system that will represent a total outlay of $676,000,000. The pictures show a train consisting of the new style cars with four doors instead of two, on a trial trip.

Laurel and Hardy, famous screen comedians, make their first visit to New York and go out to see the sights of Broadway in an old fashioned seagoing hack. As usual they get into trouble no end.

Menjou Star In Warner

By EDWARD W. GOSS

"Bachelor's Affairs," with Adolphe Menjou, Minna Gombell and Joan Marsh in the Warner, is top-notch comedy.

Menjou is not his usual sauve, worldly-wise self in this picture. Instead he is cast as a rich bachelor "growing old gracefully." Menjou, the bachelor, is quite happy as a bachelor but he doesn't know it and spoils things for himself by suffering an attack of puppy love. The object of his affections is a brainless young thing who "just loves" roller-coasters, dancing the rumba, night clubs and all those pleasures that are no longer pleasures for the sedate bachelor.

Menjou and the girl become one. Neither of them is to blame. It is the girl's sister who is at fault. The sister, knowing the bachelor is rich, wishes to receive material benefits from the union.

Bachelor Menjou soon discovers his knees absolutely refuse to bend to the wailing notes of the saxophone. He wants his quiet corner and a good book. Taking this as a premise, he soon proves to himself that his marriage is one great mistake. Now follows a plot to rid himself of his bride. The process of disentageling himself from his marriage makes the picture a howl.

Joan Marsh plays the role of the bride and Minna Gombell the role of bride's sister. Every member of the cast does good work.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"No Greater Love," opening on the Sheridan Square screen today, to show through Tuesday, is a first-run attraction for this East End house. Alexander Carr, Beryl Mercer and Dickie Moore are prominent in the cast.

"Tom Brown of Culver," a most excellent picture, by the way, will be the Enright screen feature today, Monday and Tuesday, with Tom Brown, Richard Cromwell, H. B. Warner and Slim Summerville. Despite the lack of "love interest" it has a punch.

* * *

"Rasputin, Saint or Sinner," will come to the Avenue Cinema Monday for a week, as the screen attraction in that theater. It is a Russian picture in which the title role is played by Nickolai Malikoff of the Moscow Art Theater.

Buster Keaton Very Funny In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

As a Greek professor who becomes interested in a cheap theatrical enterprise after hearing he is heir of $750,000, Buster Keaton at the Penn Theater has one of the funniest roles he's ever had in "Speak Easily." There is a faint resemblance to the plot of "The Good Companions," but this is all hilarious farce, with Buster never cracking a smile. With utmost soberness he uses the biggest words at the most ridiculous moments, and mixes his own cocktails with most embarrassing results. When the show is finally put on Broadway, he makes such a mess of everything that all his blunders are thought to be part of the show—so it's a big hit.

Mr. Seibel

To tell anything more about the plot would be impossible except for the learned professor himself. It is so wildly absurd that anything might happen and everything does happen. Buster is aided and abetted by Jimmy Durante and Thelma Todd—"Schnozzle" is the manager and pianist of the show and Thelma turns up as a dancing vamp with designs on Buster. Some of the most riotous scenes occur on the Broadway stage, during the performance of "Speak Easily"—the title was "Speak Easy," but the professor corrected the grammer. The wild farce is more than slightly improbable, as the professor would admit.

With a very funny and fantastic "Mickey Mouse" cartoon comedy, and an Irish travelogue full of charm, the program is a most enjoyable one. Not in a blue moon has there been so much laughter—everybody laughs but Buster Keaton.

Clara Bow Seeks Leading Man

Clara Bow's contract with Fox gives her the right to select her leading man for "Call Her Savage," her first Fox picture, and though she and John Francis Dillon, who is to direct the picture, have made many tests during the past weeks, the proper man has not as yet presented himself.

Stanley Film 'Doctor X' Creepy

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Doctor X," the distinctly worth-while movie in the Stanley, is a picturization of one of those goofy imaginative stories on the order of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and "Frankenstein." But its horrific elements are much more soft. It is jus a thrilling but not so chilling. It has eeriness without weariness.

Many of its scenes border on comedy—thanks to the fine work of Lee Tracy, who continues to be a reporter—and a good one. But all the excellence does not reside in Lee alone, for the acting is bang-up throughout. Lionel Atwill, suave and plausible stage artist, rates high in the title role. Fay Wray clicks in the principal feminine part.

LEE TRACY ON JOB

The story centers in the solution of a series of murders—which at once classifies it as a mystery tale. The crimes are all marked by one identical factor that pins the guilt on one persons. So it is up to the detectives—and Lee Tracy'—to discover who is the killer.

The trail leads to a research laboratory conducted by a Dr. Xavier, the "Doctor X" of the title. The scent of the hounds of the law proves true, and that is as far as we are going to take you toward the solution, for mysteries must not be revealed else the pleasure of witnessing the picture will vanish.

BACKGROUND IMPRESSES

The lab of Dr. Xavier heightens the punch of the action, for it is filled with all kinds of strange electrical and chemical equipment that is made use of and which serves the purpose of awing the befuddled spectator, who thinks first one person, and then another, among several in the scientific workshop must be guilty. The weird appliances help, too, in the identification of the murderer in a climax that is tensely dramatic.

The atmosphere of mysticism is heightened by the interjection of moon-madness as a sub-theme, as well as by good coloration of the film, with natural facial tints and other shading to match the mood of the story.

Among many others in the cast, George Roesner stands out as a butler to give you the creeps, and Leila Bennett, as a maid affected with the shivers—and no wonder!

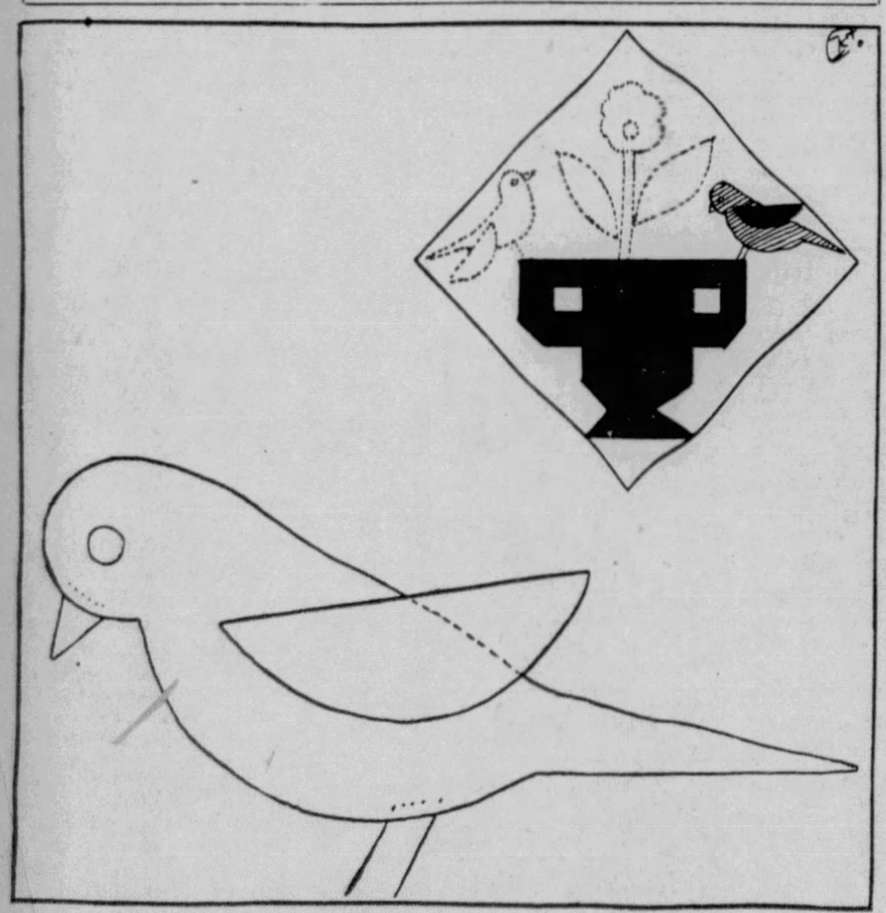
Nancy Page Quilt Club -:- By Florence La Ganke



Garden Bouquet Quilt-Meek Bird Pattern

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Garden Bouquet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page in care of this paper.

This little bird, so meek and mild, like its saucy partner, is used on each one of the 20 urns which make up the finished Nancy Page Garden Bouquet Quilt

Therefore it is wise to keep the original pattern.

Nancy advised her club members to paste it into the Nancy Page scrap book. Then it could be used for reference at any time needed. The procedure in making this bird is similar to that of any applique work. First, Nancy suggests that its outline be traced lightly on the white triangle in the spot it will occupy when it is appliqued.

This placement is shown in the small insert pattern in the corner of the block. After the tracing is made on the cloth a second tracing is made on lightweight cardboard.

This is cut out and used as a pattern by which to cut the material. In cutting allow ¼-inch on all sides for turning in the raw edges. Be sure to use fast-color material.

Suggestion were made last week as to the best wa to work out color schemes. She suggested, you remember, making all the birds alike all over the quilt. Or, making each pair alike, but different from the pair on a neighboring block. In this case the coloring of birds should fit in with coloring used for flowers.

Or, making a variation in the meek and the saucy bird. The meek one might have plain body and figured wing, while its neighbor would reverse that—having a figured body and plain wing.

But, in every case, Nancy advised making legs, beak and eye plain. The legs should be darker than beak. The eye may be of textile or embroidered in satin stitch with fast-colored embroidery cotton.

In appliqueing the pieces sew them with fine, invisible slanting hemming stitch. Be sure that raw edges are basted and pressed down before starting appliqueing.

If the same color scheme is selected for all the birds, these may be made any time, for the patterns are the same on all of the 20 urn blocks. Just so soon as the urn is pieced and joined to the triangle of white, the block is ready to have birds appliqued. It is only the flowers which change. Next week we have the tulips.

BACK BLOCKS SUPPLIED

In the event you have missed any of the Garden Bouquet Quilt blocks previously published in this paper, please send 10 cents for each block missing. Also enclose stamped, addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, care of this paper.

COMPLETE REVERSAL IN MEINE'S FORM

THE HOPES OF Pirate followers that a strong finish by Heinie Meine would make up in part of the loss of his services in the spring, when he did not start a game until June 4, following a holdout, are not being realized. Of course, there still is plenty of promise that Heinie will get going again, but he has suffered a complete form reversal since the fine game he pitched in Boston last week to break the Bucs' losing streak of 10 straight. In two starts this week he succeeded in retiring only one batter. On Monday he was lifted with only one out in the first inning, when the Dodgers, aided by a couple of errors, got away to a nine-run lead. Yesterday he was derricked with none out in the first round, the Giants piling up six tallies before the inning was ended. In the two starts, Meine gave eight hits, two bases on balls and hit a batsman.

Heinie Meine

It has been figured that a day of rest sometimes will help a slumping club to get back on its feet, but it hasn't worked out that way for the Pirates. Yesterday's defeat, the sixteenth in the last 18 games, came after an idle day and was only another addition to a long list. Since July 17, the Rovers have had nine loafing days through open dates or postponements, and every one of them was followed by a defeat.

A WORLD SERIES between the Yankees and Dodgers would keep all the games in a five-cent fare zone, but there have been shorter jumps in the history of the classic, including those between the Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds in New York in 1923, and between the parks of the Cubs and White Sox in Chicago in 1906.

The shortest jump of all, however, was merely from the first-base to the third-base side of the infield. In the Giant-Yankee title series of 1921 and 1922, all the games were played at the Polo Grounds, and the home-and-home arrangement involved only an exchange of home club's and visiting club's dugouts.

SHOULD THE DODGERS be the club to meet the Yankees in the post-season stakes, it wouldn't be the first world series between New York and Brooklyn. The Giants, of the National League, met the Brooklyn Bridegrooms, of the American Association in 1889.

The Giants won the series, six out of nine, taking five games in a row after losing three of the first four. The series did not start until October 18, and unfavorable weather kept the total receipts down to $23,628. The high mark for one game was $8,086.

THE SITUATION OF a manager owing money to his players, recently disclosed on the Chicago National League club, is rivaled in the Coast League, where a manager holds the notes of the president of his club. Ernie Johnson, who resigned two months ago as manager of the Seattle club, says he holds demand notes of President William H. Klepper, amounting to about $6,000 and representing salary yet to be paid. Attorneys for the Seattle club are reported to have told Johnson that his baseball contract will not hold in the state of Washington, and Johnson now threatens to take the case to Commissioner Landis unless a satisfactory adjustment is made.

Elmer Layden

WHETHER THE PIRATES win the pennant or not, there will be no interference with the opening of the football season at Forbes Field at the scheduled time. Elmer Layden's Duquesne University team will go through with its first two games on the dates originally announced, even if the world series comes to Pittsburgh.

The Dukes are booked to usher in the pigskin season on Friday night, September 16, with a game against Westminster College, and to play their second game on Friday night, September 23, against West Virginia University, one of the high spots of the Forbes Field schedule. That program is to stand, regardless of the outcome of the National League baseball race.

AFTER A CONFERENCE with Groundkeeper John Fogarty, the Pirate officials gave the Duke management permission to play the games as scheduled, even if the Bucs finish in first place. Fogarty assured that the field could be rolled after September 23 and placed in first-class shape for baseball in event of this city's getting part of the world series, which will open on the grounds of the American League pennant winners about September 28.

As a protection to the turf, the Dukes, as last year, will use white glass sand to mark off all the lines of the gridiron. This can be swept away at short notice without leaving a trace, so that the field will be unmarred if it is needed for baseball.

THE MOST AMAZING city in the world soon will have vanished. With all the visiting athletes gone except the Australians, Olympic Village is being rubbed out. The site of 158 acres in the Baldwin Hills, Los Angeles, must be turned back to the owner within 60 days, as barren as it was before the work of building the city was started on April 1. There were 500 two-room bungalows, each accommodating four men; five dining rooms, 200x40 feet, 20 persons to a table; five miles of streets; an administration building 800x60 feet that was visited by 600,000 persons; a post-office, radio station, hospital and dental laboratory, and the improvements made in the tract included 50 acres of grass and seven acres of flowers, chiefly xenias. The population was 1,850.

THE VILLAGE MANAGEMENT provided each country with any kind of food and as much as it wanted. "Bottled" gas was used for cooking purposes. Approximately 100,000 meals were served. The dishes and silver service for 2,000 men have been bought by a restaurant chain at 85 per cent of their cost.

The bungalows, which can be taken apart and set up again, are being sold rapidly. A laundry has purchased the 8,000 sheets, 24,000 towels and 6,000 pillow cases that were used to give the athletes a change of linen every day. Even the flagpoles of the 46 nations that competed are on the block. Everything must go, and the city unique in Olympic history, where for the first time young men of all countries, races and colors were quartered in one confined area, soon will be only a memory.

FRANCIS OUIMET will have plenty of competition from the old guard as well as from the younger element when he goes to Baltimore to defend his title as amateur golf champion of the United States, starting September 12.

No fewer than six other former holders of the same championship will be among the contestants, these being Jimmy Johnston, Jess Sweetser, Chick Evans, Jesse Guilford, Max Marston and Chandler Egan.

Primo Carnera

THE DECISION GIVEN to Stanley Poreda over him in Newark being generally discounted as unjust, Primo Carnera has lost nothing as a drawing card. On the contrary he is in greater demand than ever, as a result of the improvement he has shown since his first visit to this country. He has missed out on a Chicago engagement for the time being, as first Charley Retzlaff blew up, and then Tuffy Griffiths was found unavailable, but the promoters hope to find somebody else for Primo at a later date. Meanwhile, the big Italian will appear in one of the most interesting heavyweight bouts of the late summer season in the East, being scheduled to meet Isidoro Gastanaga at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn on August 31.

MARKS BEATEN BY HIGHLANDER IN AMATEUR

By TOM BIRKS

Maurice LeBosquet, Highland Country Club star, added another trophy to the club's possessions when he annexed the Western Pennsylvania amateur title yesterday afternoon, defeating Wilson Marks, of Oakmont, in the final round of the annual tourney, 4 and 3, at the South Hills Club.

Straight as a die tee shots, perfect niblick pitches and sensational putting contributed to the victory of the popular Highlander. Marks, shooting par golf, found himself snowed under a barrage of birdies.

LeBosquet entered the final round by beating Herb Miller, of Aliquippa, 6 and 4, while Marks put the defending champion, Denny St. Clair, out of the running, 6 and 5. Both players shot a 37 on the first nine, and were all even. LeBosquet was 2 up at No. 5, but Marks squared the match on the ninth green.

On the second nine, LeBosquet started shooting birdies and par holes to finish the match on the fifteenth green.

Mrs. Margaret Curry successfully defended her city women's title, defeating Miss Edith Clark in the final round, 5 and 4, at Schenley. At Wildwood, Mrs. H. W. Christie, of Butler Country Club, won the low gross honors with an 89; Mrs. W. Martin, of Oakmont, captured low net with a 79.

Mike Evans, representing South Park, won the county parks title yesterday, defeating Steve Shacoski, the champion of North Park, 161 to 166. Eighteen holes were played at each park. North Park won the team championship, defeating South Park, 20 to 6.

J. J. Kelly, of Philadelphia, won the American Legion state golf championship in the Legion's annual tournament at Stanton Heights yesterday, scoring a 78 for the low gross award.

R. B. Allison took second with an 81 and C. S. Ivory third with 82.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: 64 FRACTURES IN 68 YEARS—Arthur Gambell, who lives at 3328 Carlisle avenue, Covington, Ky., says one of the most serious accidents he ever had was when he fell backwards a single step and succeeded in breaking his shoulder in two places, as well as the upper bones of his arm and his collar bone. In all, during his 68 years, he has suffered 64 bone fractures, including all his ribs, all his fingers, some toes, both jaws, both knees, both ankles, hips, wrists and a score of others—in fact, practically every bone in his body except his back and neck. Despite his ceaseless hard luck, Gambell maintains a very optimistic attitude, and gets more than an average share of life's pleasure.

TOMORROW—A KING WITH 18 MOTHERS-IN-LAW.

VINES, ALLISON GAIN FINAL

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Observing all of the championship traditions, Ellsworth Vines, the national tennis titlist, yesterday spotted Dave Jones, of New York, two sets and then slam-banged him out of a finalist's place in the sixteenth annual Newport Casino invitation tournament.

Many times during the limit match, held up by rain for two hours, Vines appeared doomed, but he refused to yield in the slugging match with the former Columbia basketball star and won by scores of 3-6, 10-12, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

For the second consecutive year Vines will participate in the Casino finale, this time against Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., who shared the single assignments with him in the recent inter-zone final Davis Cup play with France.

Allinson topped tennis' greatest up-hill battler, Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., 7-5, 6-4, 8-10, 10-8, in the other semi-final tilt. Mangin played great tennis, once he was in the hole, but the Texan Internationalist was not the type to choke up when a supposedly roundly beaten opponent uncorked a miraculous driving finish.

The doubles semi-finalists had to gamble with darkness when they were sent out on the courts. Vines and his fellow-Californian, Keith Gledhill, had enough daylight to conquor George Lott, Chicago, and Frank X. Shields, New York, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, and enter the final round for the second straight year.

RETZLAFF WINS

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Charley Retzlaff, Duluth (Minn.) heavyweight, last night defeated Paul Pantaleo, of Chicago, by a technical knockout in the seventh round of the scheduled 10-round main bout at White City. The Chicago boxer suffered a possible jaw fracture. Buck Everett, 186½, Gary, Ind., scored an easy decision victory over Harvey Morgansen, 200, Chicago, in a six-rounder, and Bill Connell, 185½, Monmouth, Ill., stopped Joe Greb, 185½, Chicago, in the third round of another six-rounder.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Frankie Petrolle, brother of Bill Petrolle, of Fargo, S. D., lost the decision last night in a 10-round bout with Morrie Sherman, of New York. Danny Sullivan, referee, gave Sherman seven rounds and Petrolle two. Petrolle weighed 144½ and Sherman 148.

A. A. U. TITLE RACE TODAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—The pick of the country's long distance plodders gathered here for the National A. A. U. Marathon championship run carded for today.

The pack of nearly 125 will race from Mount Vernon to the White House over the traditional distance of 26 miles, 385 yards. All will be shooting at the time of 2 hours, 31 minutes, 36 seconds set by Juan Zabala, of Argentina on August 7 in his record-breaking Olympic victory at Los Angeles.

Outstanding in the big field are Paul De Bruyn, 24-year-old German runner from New York, who won the Boston Marathon this year; Billy Agee, of Baltimore, defending A. A. U. champion; Clarence De Mar, the veteran schoolmaster-runner who has won the Boston race seven times; Jimmy Henigan, Medford, Mass., second in the 1932 Boston Marathon, and John Semple, West Lynn, Mass., former champion of Scotland.

De Bruyn was a favorite to win the Olympic crown, but finished fifteenth. He says he runs best on a hot day and hopes for a scorcher.

Jacktown Fair Race Meet Over

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 20.—The Jacktown fair closed its sixty-seventh annual race meet yesterday. Billy June Rock, owned by H. C. Paxton, Smithfield, O., won the 2:18 pace in straight heats and at the same time established a new track record in the final heat, when he made the three circuits of the track in 2:08. The previous record was 2:09.

In the free-for-all trot Arthur Harvester, driven by Anderson, had no trouble to win in straight heats.

TWO FEATURE RACES TODAY

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—(AP.)—A double-barreled feature program, the forty-first running of the Spinaway for juvenile fillies and the sixty-third running of the Travers for 3-year-olds, drew crowds of turf lovers to this racing center today.

Overnight, William Woodward's Happy Gal, in the Spinaway, and Morton L. Schwartz's Gusto, in the Travers, were the favorites.

Gusto's chief opposition in the $25,000, mile-and-one-quarter stake was expected to come from Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Stepenfetchit and W. R. Coe's Osculator.

Arrayed against Happy Gal in the six-furlong Spinaway were 15 of her sex, headed by C. V. Whitney's Disdainful and the Audley Farm's Hilena.

Ground Broken For Racing Plant

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—(AP.)—Five thousand racing enthusiasts saw ground-breaking ceremonies near suburban Arcadia yesterday for the $1,000,000 horse-racing track promoted by Joseph M. Smoot, president of the Los Angeles Jockey Club.

Anita Baldwin presented Smoot the red and black race colors of her father, the late E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin, whose stable four times won the Kentucky Derby.

DEFEAT DROPS CORSAIRS TO THIRD PLACE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The first performance of "Bill Terry's Revenge" having been a big success from the New York point of view, the author and director of the play will try to repeat his triumph at Forbes Field this afternoon in a double-header with the Pirates. The melodrama, opening yesterday in the Oakland Orchard, brought a touch of tragedy to the home players who this morning were in third place as a result of another setback.

While the Giants were taking a one-sided game from the Pirates, Scoops Carey's Dodgers continued their fine play at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds. The gain of a full game on the party of the Carey Clan gave them an advantage over the Buccos of something less than a half game. The Dodgers have two more defeats than that shown in the Pittsburgh total, but the runners-up have three more victories to their credit.

CUBS DEFEATED

The Braves finally weighed in with a victory over Charley Grimm's Cubs, which tended to balance up things a bit. The Bruins are leading the Dodgers by something like two games and have a slightly better margin on the Oaklanders.

Manager Gibson expects to use Larry French and Bill Harris on the slab in the bargain attraction. Bill Walker will work one of the games for the Giants. Either Herman Bell or Sam Gibson is likely to be the New York selection in the second encounter. The excitement will begin at 1:45 o'clock.

The Buccos were a big disappointment to a noisy gathering yesterday as they lost their sixteenth contest in 18 games. Southpaw Carl Hubbell was nicked for 14 hits by the Gibsonites, but Carl's mates gave him a six-run lead at the outset and apparently he was in a mood to be a bit generous at certain intervals of the battle. The score was 10-4.

Kid Vaughan kicked in with three misplays, but it would be going out of the way to say the youngster helped to lose the contest as there were no misplays in the first round.

MEINE CHASED

Heinie Meine, for the second time in a few days, was the victim of a heavy cannonading. The Giants were hammering the veteran to all corners of the lot when Leon Chagnon came to his rescue. Chagnon did a nice job until the sixth, when the enemy broke out in a three-run rash. Glenn Spencer and Ervin Brame finished the contest for the Pirates.

Leftfielder Moore greeted Meine with a hot single at the start of the game. Moore was up again in the inning, his double off Chagnon being the sixth hit of the round. The Waner boys opened up with a single and a double in the home half. Barbee and Suhr also made hits in the inning, but Traynor's savage liner was nailed by Hubbell and turned into a double play.

SCHEDULE CHANGED

A change in the schedule has added another double-header to the Forbes Field program for next week. At the request of the Phillies, the game booked for September 1 has been moved up and will be played as part of a dual bill next Thursday, providing an extra feature for Ladies' Day. The Phils asked for the change in order that they might return home immediately after their series in Cincinnati, thus avoiding three idle days

WILCY MOORE STARS IN RELIEF ROLE FOR YANKEES

DODGERS PASS PIRATES IN NATIONAL

Associated Press.

Back in 1927 the New York Yankees won an American League pennant with the aid of the good right arm of one of the oldest rookies any major league club ever brought up to the big show.

He is Wilcy Moore, relief hurler extraordinary. He was 30 years old when the Yankees first bought him, but he proceeded to win 19 games and lose only seven in 1927, his labors restricted almost entirely to relief roles. A few weeks ago the Yankees picked him up again from the Boston Red Sox.

MOORE SAVES DAY

He was shoved into the breach against the Detroit Tigers yesterday, his third relief job in the last five days, and promptly saved the game for the Yankees. The Tigers had won the first battle, 4-3, as Elon Hogsett outpitched Charley Ruffing and broke the Yankees' streak of 10 successive victories, and the second game was tied up at 5-5 when Moore was sent in to hold the Tigers safe in the ninth. He did and the Yankees proceeded to win the game for him in the last half of the same frame, Tony Lazzeri's single driving in the winning run. Babe Ruth clouted his thirty-fifth homer.

The Philadelphia Athletics strengthened their hold on second place by whipping the Cleveland Indians in both ends of a double header, 9-7 and 3-2, in 10 innings.

Washington's Senators tripped the Chicago White Sox twice, 4-3, 3-1.

In the National League, the Brooklyn Dodgers moved into second place, two games behind the Chicago Cubs, by blanking the Cincinnati Reds, 6-0, behind Van Mungo's six-hit pitching.

BRAVES BEAT CUBS

The Cubs dropped a 6-to-5 decision to the Boston Braves in the fourth game of a series in which every battle was decided by one run.

The New York Giants clouted Heinie Meine and Leon Chagnon for six runs in the first inning and beat Pittsburgh, 10-4, dropping the Pirates into third place.

Singles by Wilson and Flowers, with Sylvester Johnson's sacrifice bunt in between, gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 5-to-4 decision over the Phillies in an 11-inning game.

CANTON NINE PLAYS HERE

The Canton, O., nine will be the attraction at Greenlee Field this afternoon, meeting the Crawfords in a double header.

Canton is coming with a good reputation. The team is composed of stars from defunct minor league clubs.

Tomorrow, Homewood, of the City League, will meet the Crawfords in a game for the benefit of the Twelfth Ward relief fund.

Books and Dormont scored victories in the City League last evening, the Books nailing Reliance Life, 13 to 3, and Dormont taking over the Geislers, 24 to 3.

In the County League, Frick Park trimmed Pitcairn, 3 to 1, and Millikens defeated Bellevue, 5 to 4. The Banksville nine lost to Hazelwood in the Greater Pittsburgh circuit, 5 to 4, and the Crawfords defeated the North Siders in an independent tussle, 12 to 3.

Fair Fans Wish Grimm Luck as Cubs' New Manager

THIRTY THOUSAND LOYAL ROOTERS TURN OUT TO GIVE HORNSBY'S SUCCESSOR BIG RECEPTION ON RETURN TO CHICAGO

Grimm surrounded by a group of loyal fans as he returned to Chicago as manager of the Bruins. Grimm succeeded Rogers Hornsby while the team was in the East. The Cubs have played consistent ball since Charley took over the reins and succeeded in displacing the Pirates as leaders in the National League pennant race. This is an International News Photo Service picture.

PIRATES FACE TWIN BILL

on the road. They were originally scheduled to play only three games here next week and to return for a single contest on September 1.

President John A. Heydler, of the National League, arrived here this morning to witness the Pirate-Giant double-header and will leave on the same train with the Pirates tonight for Cincinnati to attend the Old Timers' Day there tomorrow.

CHILLYSAUCE

Paul Waner garnered two doubles in the first fracas with the Giants to run his total of two-baggers to 48. Brother Lloyd kicked in with two singles and a triple.

Judging from the manner in which the Giants tinned Meine's pitchers there wasn't much on the ball. Moore, Critz and Terry licked three in a row at the outset.

An American Legion Band from Scranton was on hand to honor Pitcher Bill Swift, a resident of the famed anthracite city.

The Pirates are still very much in the race, but behooves them to get into a winning stride soon. The fighting qualities shown by the Braves in finally gaining a verdict over the Cubs is admirable.

Tommy Padden did a nice job of catching and he came through with two pretty hits.

The Giants are still smarting from recent defeats sustained at the hands of the Buccos and they probably will be tough hombres in the series.

Bud Azoff Wins At Butler Races

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 20. — Bud Azoff, a chestnut gelding owned by the Fair Oaks farms, of Lexington, Mass., romped away with the first division of the 2:17 pace, in straight heats, setting the fastest time of the three-day racing concluded yesterday. Napoleon's Brother pressed the gelding hard for the lead.

Five races were run off yesterday, two divisions of the 2:17 pace and 2:18 trot and the 3-year-old stake. Czarina V., owned by Rowey E. Sybil, of Ligonier, and driven by McMillen, after losing the first heat of the race came back to beat Grant Napoleon, first heat winner, to the wire. Grant Napoleon, driven by Walter Johnson, won his first race in this stake.

Oh My, a roan gelding owned by A. J. Lamb, of Ingram, which won the first two heats and the race in the 2:25 pacing class Wednesday at the local fair, winning his second heat in 2:10, was sold today to Paul Bowser, of Ford City.

Blondie Gets Better Insight Of Life During Long Stay in Hospital

CHAPTER XXIV.

Back stage a small group huddled around Blondie, a sorry little figure, crushed and unconscious. A girl in a nautch dance costume stuffed a dressing gown under her head. Another wearing nothing but tight-fitting flesh-colored trunks and a brassiere covered her with a cloak.

Off to one side Lurline stood alone, breathlessly watching the efforts to help her friend. She was stunned—torn between her desire to rush to her pal and the feeling of guilt that assailed her. Her hand caught at her throat as she saw Blondie open her eyes.

"I'm all right!" came feebly from Blondie's tight lips. She tried to rise, but fell back with a groan.

With a rush O'Brien burst upon the group. He quickly slowed down and said gently:

"Get her out of here—the palace set's coming down . . . hurry along now . . ."

"Her back is broken!" chorused the Locke twins.

"I don't wonder," said O'Brien sympathetically but still trying to restore order, "the way she went over the footlights." Then turning on the group of girls, "That'll teach some of you dames a lesson—to keep out of that speak—you can't work on booze—it's an example to you!"

Suddenly catching sight of Lurline, O'Brien stalked over to her. "Now, perhaps, you're satisfied—get out of here—you needn't finish the show—you're through!"

Lurline turned slowly toward the dressing room, her head hanging, as the faint wail of the ambulance siren echoed from the street. When she came down carrying her hand bag, Blondie had gone. Lurline left the theater without a word to anyone.

VISITS BLONDIE

Through the swinging doors of Ward 17 of the Good Samaritan Hospital, a nurse entered quietly. She was followed by a visitor dressed in the height of fashion. They passed the other beds in the ward, all occupied, and made for one over in a corner of the huge room, near a window. In the narrow bed was a rigid figure encased in a plaster cast and steel braces. The back of the blonde head on the pillow was partly hidden by a semi-circle of leather-covered steel which disappeared from sight under the white bedspread.

Blondie was on her side, the only position she had been permitted to lie in for more than three months. As the footsteps of the visitors approached, her eyes brightened. She strained hard to catch every sound.

"Is it Lottie?" Blondie cried, sensing the identity of the visitor.

"Right again," said the nurse cheerily, as she circled the bed to get within Blondie's view.

Lurline stood looking down at the stiff little figure under the covers, her face a study of confused humiliation. There was an awkward pause, when a chauffeur entered, carrying a large basket of orchids.

"I brought you some flowers," said Lurline with evident embarrassment, as the nurse set the basket on the table.

"Gee, aren't those beautiful . . . thanks," said Blondie brightly. There was another long pause, even after the nurse and and the chauffeur went out. Lurline stood staring thoughtfully. Blondie tried to speak casually. "Say, I can't look around—you'll have to come over here."

Lurline moved closer to the bed, but still remained out of Blondie's line of vision. She looked down nervously, trying to think of something to say to hide her emotion.

"Is that a brace?" she finally asked.

"No—" Blondie smiled," . . . it's a necklace—from Cartier's."

The answer only increased Lurline's embarrassment. She looked around the room almost frantically. Then she found her voice.

"It's a nice place...swell view from here."

Blondie looked longingly out the window. "East River...I can see the dawn come up over it . . .it's great." Trying again unsuccessfully to see Lurline, she said, "Come here, Lottie."

CHANCE TO THINK

With an effort Lurline pulled herself together, walked around the bed, and sat down in the straight-back chair. Without meeting Blondie's eyes, she asked quickly:

"Much pain?"

"Not now." Blondie grinned bravely. "Gee, I'm glad you came to see me!" she added enthusiastically.

"Poor kid." Lurline was obviously curbing her agitation.

"You got a great chance to think when you have to be quiet like this," said Blondie, anxious to relieve the tenseness.

"I suppose so."

"You know, I was thinking that sometimes an accident like this..."

Lurline interrupted, looking at her quickly. "It wasn't an accident!"

"It was an accident..."

"You know it wasn't an accident, Blondie," insisted Lurline with feeling. "That's why I came here today...to tell you..."

"If it wasn't an accident—then what was it?"

"It was-s-s...I hated you then..."

"Wasn't that an accident?" Blondie interrupted.

"No! . . . I thought you were taking something away from me . . . and that was no accident. Larry was all I had—financially . . . but it's different now . . . so that's why I came." For the first time Lurline smiled.

Blondie quickly met her smile, looking up at Lurline with the old-time kid gentleness of the tenements. She appraised Lurline's finery with quick eyes. Still grinning broadly, she said affectionately:

NEW REALIZATION

"Listen, mug . . . I'll be home next month . . . home! . . . do you know what that means? We thought we had everything, but I know now we were all wrong . . . we never had a home . . . of our own. We have to go back, Lurline, and start all over again . . . this time a real home . . . with husbands and . . . kids." As she finished, Blondie looked at her appealingly.

"Not me," and there was a definite finality in Lurline's voice. The smile left her face. Almost viciously she said, "I'll never go down in that hole again . . . let alone live there!"

"You can't go on with this sort of life . . ."

"Oh, can't I . . . and why not? It gives me everything, doesn't it . . . ?"

"But Larry!" Blondie said it quickly and bluntly. She watched Lurline closely.

"Say, there's as many fish in the sea as were ever caught," Lurline calmly replied, " . . . and I got myself a big oyster . . . a real oyster with the world's largest pearl inside . . ." Suddenly she stripped off her glove and carelessly laid a jeweled hand on the edge of the bed. In the same bragging tone she added: "He's a cattle baron from South Africa . . . has millions . . . and do you suppose he would let me work . . . ?"

"But what does it get you . . . where'll you be when its over . . . ?" Blondie argued.

"I'll have plenty . . . and it won't be over very soon . . . he's crazy about me—crazy—you'd die, Blondie—wants me to travel all the time . . ." Lurline rose and walked to the window.

"You're all wrong . . . Blondie started.

Lurline turned. "I don't think so . . . it's the life for me . . . even if you did sour on it before you had to . . ." She blushed.

"Please think it over, Lurline . . . your mother . . ."

"I have thought it over. . . .I just can't go back there again—ever! It makes me sick to even think of it . . . Anyway, he wouldn't stand for it now."

Blondie attempted a final plea. "Please, Lurline, listen..."

"It's no use—won't do any good . . . I know. There's no reason why I shouldn't have everything . . . I have it . . . and I'm not going to give it up!"

Blondie looked at her helplessly. There was none of the old Lottie left, she thought. The gay, wild, futile life had made a new Lottie. It was all Lurline now—self-satisfied, self-centered, selfish.

"I must be going . . . it's getting late . . . big dinner tonight . . . the Argentine Ambassador from Washington . . ." She arose.

"Okay . . . you won't change your mind?"

"No . . . thanks . . . I know what's best for me," answered Lurline, flatly, drawing on her glove with that old-time grand air.

Blondie smiled wanly. "Thanks for coming up . . . come again, if you can . . ."

"I'll try.. . " She held out her hand. As Blondie took it, Lurline looked confused. "We're going away, but I'll try . . . goodbye . . . "

"Goodbye . . . mug . . . Lurline turned quickly. As she hurried down the row of beds Blondie called:

"We'll always be pals . . . even if we do live different lives . . . and never see each other again . . ."

But Lurline never heard. She was hurrying to keep her appointment with the man of millions.

Blondie tried to rise, but fell back with a groan.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Hugh Grantland Is in Wistful Mood at Breakfast

At my proposal that we save Ronald the embarrassment of meeting us at the breakfast table before his scheduled tennis match with Mary—the beginning of our little conspiracy to bring Marion to her senses—Lillian rose quickly with me.

"A good idea," she commented, and we escaped through the kitchen door.

"I think we can trust Mary," I said smiling. "Her heart is in the work, and I think she'll put him through sufficient rehearsals to make him letter-perfect."

Then we proceeded to enjoy Katie's breakfast, always worthy of one's undivided attention. As Lillian lifted her second cup of coffee to her lips I saw her stiffen slightly. Then she rose with the cup in her hand.

"I promised Katherine I'd come in and pinch-hit for Harry," she said hurriedly. "I want to let him sleep, even if one of our guests does appear to be a victim of insomnia. I hope he doesn't share Ronald's aversion to food. Try to get him to peck at something, anyway, Madge."

There was amusement in her low tones, and in the mischievous glance she gave me as she went with apparent sauntering, but real haste, through the door behind us. I hoped my cheeks were not flaunting my embarrassment at her raillery, as Hugh Grantland crossed the grassy space between the bungalow and the small side veranda and looked up over the railing at me.

HAD NO SLEEP

"You ought not to be up so early," he said, with the grave concern in his voice that is always brought there by what he considers any unusual activity of mine.

"I am afraid you're Satan reproving sin," I said, taking refuge in banal gayety. "Lillian tells me that you didn't get to sleep until an hour ago. Why did you arise so soon?"

"I haven't 'arisen' for I haven't yet gone to bed. I took a shower, shaved and dressed in different clothing, which, by the way with Lee Chow's I shall see to having destroyed later on. Then I came out here, intending to go for a walk. I found it impossible to sleep. It's a long time, you know, since——"

He broke off abruptly, and again I hoped my cheeks were not betraying me. It was so obvious, what he was about to say, and why with his unfailing delicacy, he did not say it.

"But you must have some breakfast first," I said with perfunctory hospitality.

"I'm not hungry," he said quickly. "Really, I couldn't touch anything."

INTERRUPTED BY INFANT

"But that's nonsense," I said, striving to act the role of a solicitous hostess. "At least have a 'tennis breakfast,' and then when you return from your walk, you may have an appetite for a real one. Come up and sit down. Katie will be right here."

He looked around him hesitantly, then at the little table laid for two, then at me, and came up the steps as if under some compulsion.

"What may a 'tennis breakfast' be?" he inquired when he had seated himself opposite me.

I touched a bell for Katie as I answered him, "Orange or grapefruit juice, a cup of coffee and a slice of toast."

"Shall I be keeping you?" he asked, and there was something so unconsciously wistful in his tone, that I committed perjury then and there.

"No, indeed," I said, "I shall indulge myself in another cup of coffee to insure your eating some breakfast, anyway."

"That makes it impossible for me to refuse," he said, with the touch of old-fashioned gallantry that is his. He spoke no more until Katie had cleared away Lillian's dishes and brought his orange juice and toast and a fresh pot of coffee, from which I poured his cup and mine. His eyes were upon my hands, and I hoped that their nervous trembling was not visible.

"Do you know this is the first time," he began, and then through an open window there came that unmistakable sound, the wail of an awakened and angry infant. He stopped short and looked at me with suddenly startled eyes.

"Who—what—is that?" he asked.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

A note of sadness has been noticed among the members of the Manor Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club for the past two weeks because Leona Simon, one of the most popular members of the club and a leader among the girls, died.

The meeting today and the one next week will be in memory of this girl who did so much to bring cheer and happiness in this section of Pittsburgh.

Many of the members are away on their vacation and all of them are expected home this coming week so the regular meeting next Saturday, when all members are expected to attend, will honor Leona Simon.

Edna Jean Swartz and her brother Irving are expected back from Canada where they have been spending their vacation. While in Canada they visited the Canadian Exposition in Toronto and Manager Joe Blowitz, of the Manor Theater, will have them tell the youngsters all about their trip at one of the future meetings.

TO TELL OF TRIP

Ryna Mates, who lives on Shady avenue and attends the meetings regularly, has just returned from a visit to Washington and Baltimore.

While in Washington she visited all the places of interest, including the White House, the Treasury Building, Washington's Monument, the Capitol, had a ride on the Potomac River, famous for it's historic interest, and saw the President of the United States riding up Pennsylvania avenue.

Jean and Francis Stanton, of South Negley avenue, left this week for Indiana, Pa., where they plan to spend the remaining time until school opens.

BACK FROM CANADA

Another of the members of the Manor Chapter who spent a vacation in Canada was Evelyn Parker, who has just returned home after two weeks at Niagara Falls, Canada.

Each Friday afternoon at the Wightman School playground there is a special event in which most of the participants are members of the Manor Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club.

Last Friday they staged a treasure hunt in which Joseph Cohen, a member, was the winner. Yesterday they held a Jack-O-Lantern party, but the winner had not been picked when this was written.

Last Saturday three young members of this chapter walked into the meeting brown as "berries." When asked where they had received such a swell sun-tan, they replied that they had spent their vacation in Atlantic City and that they spent most of their time on the beach.

NEWS EXPECTED

Evelyn Park, the "Official Junior Komic Club Reporter," has also returned from her vacation and we are expecting lots more news from the Manor Chapter in the future.

If you are not a member of the Junior Komic Club, today will be a good time to join, because when you return to school about September 1, you'll find that most of the youngsters in your class are already members and they will be proudly showing you their membership card and their club button. So if you don't have a membership card and button, you'll not be considered one of the "crowd."

What could be nicer than having your own private bar and beverage dispenser right in your own home? Mighty convenient, what? And economical, too. No traipsing about to expensive speakeasies. Make merry around the fireside and save cab fare. The Little Gem Hydrostatic Home Bar and Beverage Dispenser, shown above, has many exclusive features not found elsewhere in less time than it takes to say Jack Robinson. The Legislative Session

The Sales Tax Bill Was Rushed Through Too Hastily—Brief Comment on Local News.

Now that a state appropriation for the relief of the unemployed has been granted, and a revenue-raising measure passed to provide the funds, we can welcome the adjournment of the Legislature. The special session lasted for eight weeks and cost the people of Pennsylvania not a little money. With able leadership the work could have been completed earlier and some of the money saved.

The lawmakers floundered and fumbled in indecision during the greater part of the session. They were unable to agree on taxation plans. Finally, in desperation, they succeeded in getting together on the general sales tax and rushed it through. There is reason to believe the job was done too hastily and that the tax will be under fire in the courts.

Unsatisfactory, too, is the action taken to reduce the state expenses and thereby balance the budget. It appears that the state's income is going to be less than was expected, and that the saving effected will not be sufficient to restore the cuts in appropriations to state-aided institutions, necessitated by the Talbot relief bill passed at the first special session.

*Notwithstanding that the Legislature made mis-*takes, the meeting of the last two months has been a profitable one. Pennsylvania has done at least something for its destitute, and is now in position to demand supplementary relief from the federal government through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The corporation has been deprived of any excuse for withholding aid.

Second in urgency only to the necessity of doing something to help the unemployed was the demand for an investigation by the State Senate of the charge that members of the Public Service Commission were bribed by crooked public utilities companies to favor the companies in passing on rate cases. The Senate's action in the matter is disappointing.

Confidence in the sincerity of the investigation was not increased by the statement of Senator Rial, "lame duck" chairman of the investigating committee, that its purpose should be to determine if changes were needed in the public utilities laws. The immediate job before the committee is to find out if crooked utilities bribed members of the Public Service Commission.

The New York police were unable to present a good case at a hearing of the charges against the 14 men arrested in connection with the murder of John Bazzano, the Pittsburgh racketeer. Renewed efforts must accordingly be made to clear up the assassination of Bazzano and his associates, John, James and Arthur Volpe. The zeal of the New York police does them credit.

Senator James J. Davis, indicted on the charge that he was connected with a lottery conducted by a fraternal organization, asks the people, especially those of Pennsylvania, to withhold judgment until the trial is held. It is a reasonable request, and one to which all fair-minded persons will be glad to accede. Nobody seems to be very much excited over the charge anyway.

Josephus Daniels gave the delegates to the state convention of the American Legion good advice yesterday when he bade them take an active interest in politics. "Enroll for civic justice," the wartime Secretary of the Navy said. It is advice which applies to civilians generally, as well as the veterans. If more people took a hand in the management of the country, instead of leaving the job to a handful of professional politicians, the country would be better off.

The announcement that an agreement has been reached to end the strike of hoisting engineers employed on the new postoffice building is good news. It has been unpleasant for Pittsburghers to see the work on this structure held up for a month. It was hard, too, on the workmen not directly involved in the dispute, but who have been forced to take a furlough until the hoisting engineers' grievance was adjusted.

It is to be hoped all possibilities of future dispute between the contractors and the workmen in the construction of the federal buildings have been foreseen and guarded against. It is a shame that a large public building can scarcely be erected in Pittsburgh without a strike. The Board of Public Education has had much experience with such strikes in the erection of school houses.

The call issued by the Central Labor Union to all trade unions in the city to participate in a parade on Labor Day is commendable. Pittsburgh has not had a Labor Day parade in 15 years, and there is danger that the significance of the holiday will be lost if it is given over wholly to sport. The unions can make an impressive showing, and it is to be hoped they will all turn out.

The William Flinn Highway between Pittsburgh and Butler requires improvement at a number of points. Traffic is heavy and the road should be wide enough and straight enough to take care of it comfortably and expeditiously. The news that the County Commissioners and the two United States Senators are using their influence to get the work done is encouraging.

Pittsburgh has suffered a grievous loss in the death of James Francis Burke. Where is the man upon whom we can call to serve as toastmaster at a great public banquet, with full confidence that he will perform the office perfectly? That was just one of many services that Pittsburgh habitually called upon Mr. Burke to render. There is a fine photograph of him, with President Hoover beside him, in the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Strange things are dealt with in several of the articles in the American Weekly, distributed as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Mysterious rays from the human body, the mystery of America's prehistoric towers, queer animal friendships, new secrets from the Sultan's harem, and weird paintings of the Saviour, are some of them.

'Long Live the Dead King!' -:- -:-

By Nelson Harding

"The King is dead, long live the King!"
The people used to say
When some new monarch took the throne
Of one just passed away.

But this dead king's retainers shout:
"Long live the king that's dead!"
They cheer no living monarch, but
A skeleton instead.

Marry-Go-Round

Syndicated Affections

Every now and then some nice, attractive man asks me to meet his sweetheart or his daughter or another "bright, interesting little woman," who is "just c-r-r-a-zee" to meet me! (Oh, yeah? Crazy—like a fox!)

* * *

And is my head RED? Oh, no! I'm just delighted and happy at the joyful prospect of being looked over by the "other woman," and probably being demoted three lines lower on his telephone list!

* * *

Aren't men naive? Numberless masculine optimists have spent their days vainly trying to mix their women and their drinks without getting a headache. But not one has ever succeeded!

Every unattached man has at least two women in his life. One to appeal to his higher nature—and one to appeal to the other nine-tenths of him. Alas, if he could only persuade the woman he loves and the woman who happens to be amusing him to "get together" and be good friends!

* * *

Life would be so much less complicated and so much more interesting if one woman would only be "reasonable" and the "other woman" would only be sensible, when he magnanimously suggests this little three-cornered arrangement. If they would only agree to meet, they would "just love each other!" Oh, WOULDN'T they—just!

If the two women in a man's life could only establish an entente cordiale, each would see how impossible it was for him to live without the other and would cheerfully accept a community interest in his affections. Or, so he figures.

* * *

But one woman simply won't realize that the other woman is "just a good little pal!" And the other woman simply won't "understanc" that he is only "trying to keep the peace!" So, between the two of them, they spill the beans—and spoil everything!

* * *

Oh, well—it takes two drinks to make a man feel happy; so, perhaps, it takes two women to make him feel that his life is perfectly balanced. But why does he try to MIX them?

* * *

That old Navy saying, "Here's to our wives and sweethearts! May they never MEET!" was good, ripe psychology. And any man who enjoys peace, values his nerves and looks forward to a long life, will adopt it—and never try to mix his WOMEN!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—This is the life! In a barber chair, Saturday, "getting the works." That macaw in the chair on my left seems annoyed that I'm having a radium clay facial. If he gets too smart, I'll rise up suddenly and jump at him. One thing sure, anything they smear over my face is improvement.

I'm not only having a facial at the touchoff, but I'm winding up with a grand electrical display. Stick around! You'll see them shoot sparks into my scalp and run a violet flame up and down my neck. When I get barbered, I go the route and no kidding.

See those rows of perfumed bottles? Well, I've used something from each—up one side and down the other. I also have a cousin who has been to every World's Fair since the Chicago one. But we are all democratic and easy to meet. No side about the McIntyres. Just folksy.

I wonder if my neighbor would like to hear about the time I waltzed with Irene Castle? He'd never suspect it, daubed up with clay this way. But that's life—one day waltzing, the next stuck in the mud. He's leaving. Just a once-over shave. A good neck wash wouldn't hurt him.

I'd like to talk privately to this barber about his methods of massaging. He's done everything to my face but haul off and kick it. I'll bet he effects hob-nails at that. Kinda silly, stretching out in a chair and hiring some ruffian to slap you until your head rings.

Come to think, I don't like the glint in his eye. After all, barbers have gone suddenly mad shaving customers. What if he should lean over and whisper: "Buddy, I'm sorry, but I've got to cut off your head!" Would I imitate a streak of lightning!

* * *

What a sight I'd look, breezing through town in this white shroud with my face all lathered and a wild man behind me waving a razor. That's enough of that. I'm going to think up something different. I have it! Some day I'm going to the Hotel Seville for a hair cut. Isn't that a one—you know, be trimmed by the Barber of Seville.

* * *

There's a new customer on my right, eyeing me in the mirror. Maybe it is someone I used to know. The next time he looks, I'll smile. He looks away quickly. Giving me the finger, eh? Well, you lantern-jawed hyena, where'd you get that hoot-nanny on your neck? And are you getting bald! O, boy, I thought my hair was thin, but I have more fuzz on the back of my hand than you have on your entire dome. I suppose you're one of those men of big affairs. Well, you ought to see all the papers I write for. If you hadn't been so uppity, I might have let you in on a new string trick. I can ride a bicycle, no hands, too.

* * *

The shine boy is circling around to jockey me into a polish. He doesn't know that on Saturday everything they offer in a barber-shop I take. In a minute, I'm going to have Mildred dude up my nails. Mildred is the manicure girl, and she thinks I'm head of a big film company. After all, in New York, one doesn't like to tell a stranger he's a columnist. I have some shame. Mildred has such nice shoulders. I'm a zealot for shoulders—them and thick tapioca.

* * *

I wonder if Mildred would care if I sent her a big box of candy sometime. That's what I'll do. Send Mildred five pounds. I've always wanted to do something for Mildred. Let's see—$1.50 a pound for five pounds would be $7.50. After all, maybe she'd like it better if I sent her a nice new $2 book. Mildred should read more and brighten up her mind. She's a bit thick, if you ask me. Or I could send her that tricky pencil for the purse I found on the street. That's what, I'll send Mildred the pencil. But one more jab at that cuticle and I'll send her nothing. Ooooch! Now Mildred has ouched herself out of a $7.50 box of candy. No, I decided against that candy. But she's lost out on a dandy pencil.

* * *

Why doesn't he hold the mirror to the back of my head? Front view, I look rather pert. Mildred is now gushing with one of those snappy boys with lavender suspenders. I'm glad I'm dignified. I ought to give this barber a dollar. Still, he didn't swish the hair from under my collar. Fifty cents is plenty. He's called to the phone. I'll just lay a dime here on his shelf. Too much soaking the rich these days anyway.

LISTEN, WORLD -:- -:-

By Elsie Robinson

And sooner or later I have had to face everything I feared.

I have sickness—poverty—failure — humiliation — loneliness, heartache and death.

All of these things I have feared and faced—

And they've all been pretty bad.

But there was something else in my life which, strangely enough, I had not feared, but which has proved to be a greater menace than all these other things put together.

That other thing is Myself.

I have learned how to understand and endure and at least partly control the other circumstances in my life—

But I haven't even begun to know how, to understand, endure or control, Myself.

Time and again I thought I had Myself licked into shape—

And I've gone on my way rejoicing—

Only to trip over some small cussedness which I, Myself, had been holding out on me.

Time and again, Myself has tricked me when I thought I was sitting pretty.

Now, that I look back, over it all, I see that I, Myself, was the only thing that did have power over me or could defeat me. For it was I, Myself, who put the sting and terror in all those other experiences.

Poverty, sickness, failure—even death — all these things were merely circumstances. They weren't pleasant circumstances, but they were circumstances that happened to everyone. They broke some people. They didn't break others. It all depended on how they were taken.

Poverty might break me, or it might not break me. That depended on how I took poverty.

Danger might or might not rout me—that depended on how I took Danger.

I could, by my attitude, allow these things to wreck my life or I could actually make assets of them—turning them to my future advantage, as a craftsman turns the tricks of his trade.

In short, the outcome of all experience lay with me, Myself.

Out of me, Myself, came all terror and beauty, all strength and weakness, all courage and cowardice, love and hate, desire and despair.

LIFE WAS ONLY SCENERY, BUT I, MYSELF, WAS A LIVING FORCE WHICH COULD USE THAT SCENERY FOR GOOD OR ILL.

THAT IS THE THING I HAVE FOUND OUT ABOUT MYSELF.

That is the thing which you will find out about yourself if you have the courage to face the truth.

You ARE the "master of your fate."

And, You, alone, can make yourself take the count.

You ARE the "master of your fate."

The Rhyming Optimist

BY ALINE MICHAELS

If I Were Sure

If I were sure your love would be,
Next decade, as today—
No lessening of ecstasy,
No ardors burned away—
I'd ask, if sure to give your kiss
Such welcome, greet your eyes
With such a boundless tide of bliss,
No other Paradise!

If I were certain—ah, my own,
When was love ever sure?
And who the formula has known
To make its spell endure?
Enough if for one golden moon
Its wonder is possessed,
For though it vanish all too soon,
It leaves the whole life blest!

Text For Today

Secretary Mills And His 'Veterans'

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

It may well be doubted if anyone but Ogden Mills would have had the temerity to refer, as he did recently, to the administration group as "veterans" to be kept on guard. Perhaps Mr. Hurley, who thinks the unemployed and the harassed businessman should "shift for themselves," could match Mr. Mills in this delicious arrogance, so hard to associate with the record made. If any branch of the government has been more inept than any other or shown less knowledge of its own business than the Treasury under Mr. Mills we cannot name it.

When Congress was called upon to increase taxes relentlessly to meet the Hoover deficit, and plans made were constantly set aside it was not due to the incapacity of the lawmakers, but to their inability to learn from Mills, "the veteran," as he proudly styles himself, the extent of the deficit. Apparently he did not know. Seemingly he could not guess even remotely. Senator Robinson said in the Senate, without a challenge, that neither Mr. Mellon nor Mr. Mills had been able to furnish Congress with an intelligent estimate of the receipts of the Treasury. Here is the assertion of the Democratic floor leader that no one on the administration side of the aisle challenged:

"Scarcely in a single instance have their estimates come within a hundred million dollars, in some cases the variance being $600,000,000 of the actual amount."

Only a "veteran" could miss the mark so enormously.

* * *

Demand to Wipe Out U. S. Deficit

Everyone wanted the budget balanced, and the Hoover deficit, which this year alone was only 25 per cent less than the cost of the Civil War, wiped out.

It was not an easy task to find the taxes, not nearly so simple as simple minded critics seemed to think. It will be recalled that while Congress was grappling with this problem, thrown into its lap by the "veterans," the critics of the press and politics and business were jeering at the Congress. Why didn't it do something? Didn't it have brains enough to know the budget must be balanced? And why, when it had a plan prepared, did it forthwith throw it in the waste basket and start all over again?

Had these members of the House and Senate no brains at all?

* * *

Finally Reports Much Bigger Deficit

Well, what was the trouble? If brains were involved it was the brains of the administration and particularly of the Treasury.

Here was the trouble. How much is the deficit and how much must be raised? asked Congress. And Mr. Mills and the Treasury gave the amount.

Congress with a microscope, looking for new sources of revenue, finally had a bill perfected.

And then Mr. Mills and the Treasury appeared to announce that the revenue had been greatly overestimated, and a new and much huger deficit was named.

Into the waste basket then with the bill; and again Congress got out its microscope to find still more possible sources of revenue.

And during the delay the simple minded critics jeered the louder—at Congress.

In the presence of the spokesmen of the administration, on the floor of the Senate, Senator Tydings made this statement:

"One afternoon, while the tax bill was before us for consideration, the Secretary of the Treasury (Mr. Mills) and the administration spokesman in the Senate said that the budget was balanced. The very next morning, at 11 o'clock, the same people, Mr. Mills and the administration spokesman here, admitted it was $275,000,000 short."

No one challenged that assertion. The administration spokesman, thus referred to in his presence, did not whimper. Tydings told the truth.

Here is explanation enough for the length of time consumed in framing a tax bill to balance the budget; and the humorists of the press, jeering at Congress, unconsciously were laughing at themselves.

* * *

Failed to Reduce Government Costs

Then again we have heard much about how Congress has prevented Mr. Hoover from drastically cutting the cost of government. Everyone knows he promised to reorganize the government in his campaign in 1928. Everyone knows he did nothing of the sort. Everyone should know that he had forgotten all about it until Congress began to act; and then he became as much interested for the campaign of 1932 as he had in that of 1928.

Nothing worth while has been done, and the Hurleys, Mills, Hydes now have the impudence to complain that Congress stood in the President's way.

What happened?

Under existing law, Mr. Hoover had the power to abolish or consolidate bureaus, and everyone knows that these duplicating, overlapping and unnecessary bureaus are a national scandal.

Has he consolidated or abolished? He has not.

* * *

Cabinet Fought Senate Cut Plans

Instead, while doing nothing, he asked Congress to give him arbitrary dictatorial power to do anything with the government he saw fit. And Congress, or the Senate, replied with the invitation to the President to confer with his cabinet, and made a specific recommendation for reducing governmental cost to Congress. He was assured that his recommendation would be given immediate respectful consideration.

And did he respond? He did not—he did not even reply.

But when Congress began to act independently and plan reductions in the cost of government, members of the cabinet appeared as lobbyists against any reductions in their departments.

When that charge was made in the Senate no one denied it.

The Senators had met the "veterans" when they were thus engaged.

* * *

Public Aware Of True Facts

It is evident that the "veterans" hope to confuse the public this summer and fall with a vast amount of buncombe. It will be neither easy nor wise. Businessmen and the jobless have been following proceedings in Washington with an intelligence sharpened by suffering and fear. They know what the issues are; and they expect to see both parties meet them frankly with facts.

"The only party fit to govern" has a sorry sound today; and "veterans" is a poor disguise for the shabby shibboleth shot full of holes with tragic facts.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There are times when you wish you were not held down by the demands of society and the rights of friends and family.

You'd like to do just as you please for a while and that irrespective of whom it might offend.

You don't want to do unlawful things, but want to be yourself.

And there are thousands who feel just as you do.

Their freedom would be to do evil.

So isn't it a good thing most of us are under a check rein?

If the majority conducted themselves without thought of others or the consequences entailed, this would be a far more miserable world in which to live.

The rights of others would be trampled, wouldn't they?

You have no wrong desires, might not act unfairly.

But complete liberty would not bring you real satisfaction.

You'd be just like other humans and carry it too far.

In fact so far that you would later have many regrets.

It's well you're held down.
